There will be fewer people watching the second presidential debate this week (Wednesday, 8:30 p.m.), some folks around Georgetown are predicting.

"Just some more of the same... it's really not a debate... both men know the questions in advance..." they say.

Meanwhile, the League of Women Voters, sponsors of the debates, may try to speed things up by shortening times for responses to questions. See page 2

County salaries raised $50

Commissioners develop insurance purchase avenue

"If the county can't provide (liability) insurance, then I demand a salary increase for the purpose of buying liability for myself and my deputies," Sheriff August Bossard told commissioners Monday.

And by Wednesday the salary increases were approved.

County employees will be receiving the $50 monthly raise included in 1977 budget figures two months early, commissioners decided Wednesday after meeting with Texas Attorney General representatives Tuesday to discuss employees' liability insurance.

Commissioners approved the raise with the recommendation that employees use it to purchase insurance covering official errors and omissions.

Officials at the Attorney General's office had told commissioners Tuesday that, while the county could not itself purchase the public officials' liability insurance, a salary increase to be spent by the employees for the insurance was a legal and in fact common practice.

"It's a method of county employees and officials contributing to their own liability insurance," explained County Auditor Ben Kurio as County Attorney-elect Bill Stubblefield cautioned that the court could issue no directive demanding that the raises be spent on insurance.

"It's a good program; I think they (county employees) will be tickled pink to get the coverage."

Commissioners determined to get the protection, effective as soon as possible, following a September 22 civil jury verdict in federal district court assessing $99,000 in actual and punitive damages against Bossard, Chief Deputy Daniel J. Walker, Deputy William Chandler and Jailer Bob Champion.

DISCUSSING COSTS with Southwest Insurance Agent Ross Blumentritt during their Wednesday afternoon meeting, commissioners were told, "I would say anywhere from $6,000 to $10,000 would be a figure to cover all three areas: the sheriff's department; the Emergency Medical Service; and a blanket policy for officeholders and their clerks."

Blumentritt said he would have firm quotations for the county by October 10. Commissioners meet October 11 to approve the 1977 county budget.

The insurance agent also explained that because of the verdict alleging that the four law enforcement officers violated the civil rights of a man who died in the county jail in 1974, insurance for that department would probably be higher.

"There's a possibility that because of the recent suit most companies would not want to write the policy (for the sheriff's office) or would exclude violation of civil rights but include all others, such as unlawful detention, unlawful arrest and so forth," said Blumentritt. "The alternative would be to get what you want and just pay the price."

COMMISSIONERS seemed to agree that, whatever the added price, it would be worth the added protection.

Saying it is difficult to get even tentative insurance costs quotations by telephone, Blumentritt offered the opinion that coverage for the county's law enforcement division — the sheriff, nine deputies, three jailers and five

the passing glance

By Don Scarbrough

It's heartwarming, this revelation of President Ford's playing a few rounds of golf as a guest of a U.S. Steel Company lobbyist when he was a Congressman, ten or fifteen years ago. The Democrats have been searching his record, from the time he entered Congress until now, and that's all they found. Makes him look pretty good, doesn't it, especially by comparison.

THE NEW CARS are in and I checked out the Pontiacs at Georgetown Auto Company and the Chevrolets, Buicks and Oldsmobiles at Compton Motor Company Friday afternoon. Those bright, shiny cars do have an appeal even though operating prices continue to rise. The GM line of cars reflect this concern, incidentally, they are shorter, lighter and get better gas mileage. They are also taller, which gives better visibility to the folks inside... and for the six-foot-plus type occupants, more head room.

I'll get around to Draeger's place Monday. I do know he has more cars on hand than the Ford plant does in Dearborn, Michigan.

If you go to Dallas next weekend to attend the Texas-OU game and opening day of the State Fair, don't take Mexican food into a pizza restaurant under any circumstances. A Dallas woman sent her three children into a pizza place Thursday, but stepped around the corner and bought herself a tortilla. She took it into the pizza place, joined her kids who were eating pizza. The manager called the police, who came in 5 minutes. They took her to jail and slammed the door behind her. Fortunately, the judge dismissed the case and let her leave.

And that's the truth. It has to be because I read it in the Dallas Morning News.

National 4-H Week stresses 'Room to Grow' for members

Williamson County 4-H members and adult leaders will emphasize the versatility and adaptability of their organization with the theme "Room to Grow" during National 4-H Week, which begins Sunday and will run through next Saturday.

From its turn-of-the-century origins as a national school extracurricular movement to promote agriculture among American youth, 4-H has developed into an effort to promote better citizenship and leadership skills among all youngsters, whether rural or urban.

WILLIAMSON COUNTY'S 4-H organization is still agriculturally-oriented, operated by the state's Agricultural Extension Service from offices on the third floor of the county courthouse. The majority of its members still live outside the county's cities. Livestock, clothing, and cooking projects continue to draw the most interest among members.

But with 46 project possibilities ranging from automotive safety to photography to small engine technology, 4-H can no longer be considered a "pig, corn and canning club." The organization's Extension Service coordinators, Carolyn Bonner and Edward Wilkie, say 4-H is also attracting membership from towns and cities.

4-H is no longer just for rural youth," says Bonner. "City kids have needs and interests just like kids in the country. Kids in town like to grow things, for instance, and we have projects that will teach them to cultivate plants in a limited area. With projects like rocketry and dog care, 4-H is changing to meet the needs of those who live

Valuations show Precinct 1 still largest, fastest growing

Williamson County's Precinct 1, which provides more county tax money than any of the other three precincts, also increased its total tax base by as much as $9 million more than any of the others this past year.

Figures released this week by County Tax Assessor William Buck showed a $10,710,621 increase in overall tax valuations from the Georgetown-Round Rock precinct. Countywide, total tax roll in rease was $12,035,768.

"Who in the world would ever have thought that the county would gain $12 million at one time?" marveled Buck.

In comparison, Taylor's Precinct 4 gained $1,143,545. Precinct 3 in the Granger area added $718,706 to the tax base while Precinct 2 — the Florence-Liberty Hill area — took a $537,104 loss in overall valuations.

The $2.1 million reduction in Precinct 2 personal and real estate property value, caused by removal of equipment from Westinghouse Corporation's Georgetown plant during a 1975 shutdown, was offset by increases which limited the final valuation decrease to the half-million-dollar loss. "So actually Precinct 2 gained over a million and a half," said Buck.

Totals on the new tax roll reveal that the Georgetown precinct supports nearly half — an impressive 47.27 percent — of the county's tax

Area bank deposits up once again-by $17 million

by GAYLE BLAKE

Williamson County citizens have $17 million more on deposit in county banks than they had this time last year, indicating the area's economy is healthy and growing stronger.

Last year on September 30 the grand total was $124,452,263 on deposit in the county. It was $140,381,900 as last month ended — a difference of $15,929,637.

Bank personnel contacted by the SUN attributed the rise to hopeful harvest and livestock prospects, local population growth and renewed confidence in the national economy.

They also expressed optimism that the remainder of 1976 will present encouraging economic developments.

Georgetown banks are again among the heavy gainers, although Taylor and Round Rock banks led the way.

First Taylor National leapt $4,440,852 — followed closely by Farmers State in Round Rock with $4,249,156.

Tom Parker, president of First Taylor National, attributed the increase to several factors.

"A number of things have been beneficial for our area. The crops aren't as good as we had hoped, but cotton prices have been better. We're fortunate to have a good industrial base, since about one third of the county income comes from industry," he said.

RESIDENTIAL GROWTH and anticipation of more industrial sites in the Round Rock area is the reason M. J. Cowan, vice-president of Farmers State Bank, cites for his increasing deposits. "Even more growth is anticipated, with industrial sites being planned for this area. We have better than 7,500 students in our school system and 5,000 people within the city limits. Those figures have more than doubled in the past several years."

"We have had more than 250 housing starts since the first of the year. And there is another

Week's news in a nutshell

Congress did an override job on President Ford's veto of a $36.5 billion appropriation bill to finance a broad range of social programs Thursday and also passed a compromise revenue sharing bill, which cleared the way for a Friday adjournment and more inflation shortly afterwards.

MOST RECENT POLLS by Dr. Gallop reveals that the gap between front-running Jimmy Carter and President Ford continues to narrow, although the challenger still has a whopping 8 point lead, overall. A lot of people are now saying Ford will carry Texas, thanks to some politically ill-advised comments by Carter in recent days.

In North Bend, Oregon school is out, although it had scarcely begun for the year. Taxpayers, who must OK the operating budget, balked, so the money isn't available. How long the kids will be out of school is the question. School people and parents are frantically trying to answer and the world will meet in Liberty Hill October 11-30 to sculpt a monumental piece to donate to that small west Williamson County community. This is all thanks to Mel Fowler, a sculptor of world renown who resides in Liberty Hill and dreamed up the idea of the International Sculpture Symposium.

The sculptors are paying their own way to Liberty Hill, staying with local residents and will be given a taste of Texas hospitality on a nightly basis during their stay.

UNITED FUND drives are underway in Georgetown, Round Rock and Taylor.

Tax valuations in Precinct 1 rose by about $10 million, were down slightly in Precinct 2, and up a bit in Precincts 3 and 4. The greater portion of growth in Precinct 1 is in and around Round Rock, although a lot of it is also coming to the Georgetown area.

The biggest drug bust in the history of Texas occurred in Austin this week when officers seized 26 1/2 pounds of Mexican brown heroin with an estimated street sale value of $1 million. Several Austin and Central Texas people were arrested and jailed.

Why leaner '77 cars cost more

By Charles E. Dole

When you buy a pound of hamburger these days, you're likely to pay anywhere from 79 cents to $1.39, depending on how much fat the meat contains. With less fat, the price goes up.

And so it is with a new car. General Motors has just jacked up the price of its slimmed-down '77-model cars an average 4.9 percent; yet the cars themselves weigh anywhere from 700 pounds to half a ton less than in 1976.

So the public is being cheated, right? Well, let's figure it out.

Traditionally in the auto business, there has been a direct relationship between changes in weight and changes in price — in most cases, that is.

Rule of thumb

"The rule of thumb has been that for each additional pound, the wholesale price goes up by 60 or 65 cents," says David

Healey, a financial analyst for Drexel Burnham & Co., a New York investment firm. Therefore, if the weight is reduced, the wholesale price should drop by the same amount.

The 1976 Buick Le Sabre had a base wholesale price of about $3,800 with a weight of about 4,500 pounds — or 84 cents a pound on the wholesale base price. The retail customer has to add on the dealer markup of about 20 percent, plus options, transportation and pre-delivery charges, taxes, etc.

Weighing the '77s

Now the 1977 price increase on the substantially lighter-weight cars is an average 4.9 percent although it varies by car line, model, and the like. "This includes just the base vehicle and not the options," reminds Mr. Healey.

"So I get around $1.10 to $1.15 a pound just on the suggested retail for the '77 base vehicle," he adds. "The options add more price than weight so the total cost per pound to the motorist probably figures out to about $1.25."

Arvid Jouppi, a Detroit stock-market analyst, figures the average per-pound cost of the 1977-model cars at $1.50, up from $1.20 in 1976.

The Detroit analyst declares that the domestic car industry is spending tens of billions of dollars in the 10-year period ending in the mid-1980s to resize its entire car line so as to meet mandated federal government automotive mileage figures which begin to take effect next year. GM alone says it is spending $15 billion.

High-cost materials

"Any saving in reducing the weight of their cars will be more than wiped out by higher production and capital-goods costs, plus the increasing use of more sophisticated materials," says Mr. Jouppi.

GM points to the higher cost of lightweight steel, plastics, aluminum, and more rust-inhibiting parts and processes. It has cut about 60 pounds out of car bumpers, for instance, by using higher-cost aluminum reinforcements instead of steel. And Oldsmobile is using aluminum hoods.

GM says that steel is up 8 percent in cost in the past year while labor costs are up 9 percent. Further, the new labor contracts due this fall will further crank up the costs of building a car, while productivity is not keeping pace.

If the old rule-of-thumb had worked out in the new GM models, then a weight saving of 700 pounds, on the basis of 64 cents a pound wholesale, would have meant a saving of about $450 per car to the manufacturer — and ultimately a saving to the car buyer.

"Yet GM is probably making no more than another $100 to $200 per car," suggests Mr. Healey. Yet without the savings, the price hike on the '77 cars might have been more.

Further, the downsizing is going to continue, not only at GM but with all other automakers as well.

On a per-pound basis there seems to be less value in the down-sized cars. "But that isn't the way to look at it," says Mr. Healey. "You have to look at what you're getting in terms of gasoline mileage, interior room, restyling, etc."

Clearly, it is the way the industry is moving — $1 per pound, or not.

Job referrals provided through W-BCO office

Looking for a job?

One of the first steps in job hunting is to get initial information about where open positions can be located.

And one of the closest sources of such job information is through the CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) program at Williamson-Burnet County Opportunities office (a Community Action Agency, CAA) at 115 1/2 W. Seventh St.

"Although CETA deals mainly with placing unskilled persons in job training," explained Kathy Swift, CETA coordinator at the Georgetown office, "services are being expanded to include job opening information. Job seekers interested in any type of employment, from unskilled to the professionals, are encouraged to take advantage of the service."

"Currently, listings of jobs open with the City of Austin and the State Comptroller's Office are received twice a month.

Listings from Travis County and the Mental Health-Mental Retardation office are received every week.

"We ask that persons using the service fill out a referral form to take to the interview. The employer is asked to complete it and return it to the agency. It lets us know what sort of attention they got and whether they were interviewed, and it lets employers know we are referring persons."

"We hope that local employers will remember our services and let us know when they have a job opening so that we can pass the word along to job seekers," she said.

Kathy can be contacted at her office by calling 863-6561.

THE LOW LANGUAGE OF THE HIGH-UPS

The "hells" and "dams" for which Harry Truman was criticized are not very shocking anymore.

Not alongside the obscene gestures and oral vulgarisms of some of this year's campaigners.

PERHAPS THE HIGH-UPS will throw enough of this low language our way so that eventually we'll tolerate, accept and repeat it, also.

But I'm not ready for it.

Of all our recent Presidents, Eisenhower would have been most likely to have a barracks vocabulary but I can't remember ever having heard such talk from him.

J. F. K.'s image was tarnished after his death with revelations about playgirls in the White House but he had the decency never to throw dirt in our faces.

Privately, Lyndon Johnson reportedly had a foul mouth — but never publicly.

AND DISAPPOINTING as was some of the language on the Nixon tapes, his public utterances were discreetly guarded. Some will argue that it's more "honest," that it's "less hypocritical" just to let it all hang out.

But it seems to me that your rights end where my nose begins—and that goes for my ears, also.

And when Vice President Rockefeller responded to an obscene gesture by a college student heckler with an obscene gesture of his own he serves mostly to confirm undergraduate disrespect for politicians, per se.

If our leaders are no better than anybody else, what claim have they to leadership?

It's the D. C. social whirl which spawns most of these ribald utterances. And when they get laughs on the cocktail circuit, the Mrs. Fords and the Mrs. Mondales parrot them in public.

"The Democrats are doing it to their secretaries and the Republicans are doing it to the country," said Mrs. Mondale.

BUT OUT HERE in the nine-tenths of this country where we don't track barn dirt into the house such a crudity is at least unladylike.

A recent issue of the Chicago Sun-Times sold out in a hurry. Its front page headlined: SEX, SIN AND TEMPTATION.

It was about Jimmy Carter's interview in Playboy magazine.

That interview quoted Carter using vulgarisms which are not acceptable even on the late night talk shows.

Then Carter, in Pittsburgh, said he'd not yet read his interview in Playboy. With a grin he explained that he'd read "the other parts of the magazine first."

CARTER CAMPAIGNERS are hoping he'll gain more than he loses by being candid — but the Mister Nice Guy image sure is getting blurred.

Mirror of opinion

What recession?

Was it really the worst recession since the Great Depression?

Jobs were going begging while unemployment figures soared and unemployment compensation was extended from 26 weeks to 52 weeks and to 65 weeks for "supplementary benefits." Can it be that unemployment "insurance" — which in sensible, modest form is a requisite for any advanced, civilized nation — has been overextended into a counterincentive to work? The facts do seem to point toward that unhappy conclusion.

Harvard economist Martin Feldstein, in a study for the Brookings Institution, finds that when unemployment was at its peak last year, about 47 percent of those laid off were not immediately seeking reemployment. Rather, they were using the time to do such things as repair and put fresh paint on their homes.

One reason is that the attractiveness of unemployment compensation is further enhanced by the fact that, because it is not taxed like other income, the net difference between taxed income when a man or woman is employed and when he or she is laid off may be very small. That is why, of course, Florida resorts boomed during the recession as hordes of jobless northerners took their unemployment compensation South to wait out the recession in the sun.

One would do well to keep all this firmly in mind when he hears in the presidential campaign the highly expensive Humphrey-Hawkins so-called full-employment bill being touted. It is simply a matter of understanding that if one designs his public welfare programs so that not working is nearly as attractive financially as working for a living, socialist planning and billions of tax dollars for job subsidies will represent merely the wrong solution for a misdefined problem clung to, curiously by politicians and ideologues who fondly recollect the Great Depression — a return to which their way is a sure way.

*Debate Round 2: format to stay the same

As to the possibility that the candidates might be permitted to question each other, the league official says, "This has always been an option."

"The subject is still around," she told the Monitor "but it's only a mite closer" to coming about.

Rumors acknowledged

In the wake of the debate in Philadelphia, there have been stories which indicated that the candidates, themselves — and particularly, Democrat Jimmy Carter — were "pressuring" for changes that would enliven the debate and allow for some real confrontation.

But a league official says, "There has been absolutely no pressure from the candidates" for changes. "There have been no demands."

The subject of next week's debate is foreign policy and national defense. There is no indication that the theme will be broadened to permit questions on other topics.

However, discussions between League officials and representatives of both Mr. Ford and Mr. Carter continue. Conceivably, it seems, there might be some further minor changes in format arrived at.

This standing pat on format comes at a time when reporters on public reaction, plus several polls of viewer attitudes, are indicating that much of the 90 million-plus TV audience last Thursday (Sept. 23) night found the stiff, compartmentalized, and highly formalized debate context something less than compelling television fare.

Widely tagged as 'boring'

If there was any one consensus on the evening performance, it seemed to be that the viewers found the initial debate rather boring. Certainly neither candidate electrified the viewers. Neither seemed to excite the vast audience. In fact, neither seemed able to arouse much enthusiasm even among his own supporters who were looking in.

But within the Ford camp there was little talk of wanting any change in the framework of the show simply because the Ford people are believing those polls which showed he came out ahead in the eyes of the viewers.

"Why change a good thing — or, at least, something that was good for us," a Ford aide said.

On the other hand, the Carter people seem to be at least less than forceful in seeking to drive through any changes — despite reports that the candidate, himself, is anxious for a direct exchange with Mr. Ford.

This may be because, on second thought, the Carterites have raised the question, with themselves, as to whether Mr. Carter would gain in such a confrontation. This may be particularly true in the coming debate where Mr. Ford — because of his access to foreign policy information unavailable to Mr. Carter — might have the advantage in a head-to-head encounter.

State governments in red

New York
State governments ran in the red in fiscal 1975, notes a Commerce Clearing House report.

Revenue of state governments from all sources totaled $154.6 billion in fiscal 1975 or 9.8 percent more than in fiscal 1974. Total state expenditures rose 18.2 percent to $156.2 billion. Thus, aggregate state expenditures exceeded state revenue by $1.6 billion.

The situation parallels 1971, when state expenditures also exceeded revenue by $1.6 billion.

Mobile-home sales turn upward

New York
The mobile home industry has begun a turnaround following last year's sales decline, Standard & Poor's Corporation reports.

S&P's industry surveys reported that mobile home shipments in the first seven months of 1976 were 7 percent ahead of last year's comparable period and said the industry should ship 265,000 units by year-end.

Last year, the industry shipped 212,690 homes, a 35 percent drop from 1974 levels.

Work preferred to retirement

New York
Most people would rather work than retire, according to a survey by the American Council of Life Insurance.

In response to the statement that "it is better to keep working than to retire at a fixed age," 46 percent of those surveyed agreed entirely and 30 percent agreed "somewhat."

Only 8 percent disagreed entirely.

Nova Scotia eyes coal reserves

Halifax, Nova Scotia
The Nova Scotia government has written to major Canadian and international coal companies asking for proposals to develop coal reserves in the province. Mines Minister William Gillis said.

He said 10 companies have expressed preliminary interest and added he is optimistic about the prospect for major new investments.

If Southwestern University students are typical, then Gerald Ford and Alan Steelman will win the campuses of Texas with a landslide vote, a poll conducted by the campus newspaper, The Megaphone, this week indicated.

The Megaphone polled 289 students, which is a large percentage as compared to the samplings of the Gallop and Harris polls, and found the Republicans running far out front.

Southwestern names 16 to honor list

One hundred and sixty students made the academic Distinction List at Southwestern University for the spring semester, Dean F. B. Clifford has announced.

To be included on the list, a student had to take 12 or more hours of class work and maintain a grade point average of 3.6 or higher out of a possible 4.

Also, Gina Busby, Sheryl Byrd, Dorothy Caldwell, Sharon Camp, Dawn Cardwell, Connie Casad, Nancy Chadwick, Steve Chaloupka, Thomas Chandler, Sheryl Chilson, Barbara Colley, Katherine Clement, Mary Clifford, James Cohen, Sue Cole, Christie Cook, Joe Cross, John Currier, Elbert David, Mary Davis, Mark Dawson, Also, Deborah McMahan, David McNitzky, Phyllis

Optimists, Opti-Mrs. install officers

The Georgetown Optimist and Opti-Mrs. clubs held their annual joint officers installation ceremonies last Tuesday night at the Georgetown Inn.

Installed as Opti-Mrs. officers were: Evelyn Southworth, president; Ann Parker, vice-president; Audene Bayless, secretary-treasurer; Polly Bouffard, sergeant-at-arms; Tillie Kurio, reporter; and Louise Wilcox, Flo Mills, and Iva Lee Gustafson, directors.

Installed as Optimist officers were: Burl Brooks, president; Fred Morsbach, first vice-president; Neal Boydston, second vice-president; Kennie Wilcox, sergeant-at-arms; Jack Frost, chaplain; and James Bayless and Wiggle Shell, directors.

Optimists' Governor-elect Ben Alley of Austin addressed the clubs prior to the installation, stressing the purposes of Optimism and encouraging participation by club members in various club projects designed for the betterment of the youth of the community.

Outgoing president Del Mills expressed his thanks for having the opportunity of serving the club and incoming president Burl Brooks accepted the post with a brief speech.

Prior to Alley's address, a Georgetown barbershop quartet presented an entertaining program, unique in composition and inviting group participation. Quartet members were Dr. Bob McCay, Ned Sneed, Ray Mickan and Paul Petkovsky.

Guests and officers introduced during the dinner included: secretary-treasurer Red Mitchell and his wife, Optimists' Lt. Governor-elect Bill Kennedy of Temple, Mrs. Southworth and her husband, Alley and his wife, Flo Mills, and Brooks and his wife.

Del Mills presided over the installation ceremonies and chaplain Ed Breeding offered the invocation. The pledge of allegiance to the flag closed the meeting.

FOOTBALL CONTEST

PICK THE WINNERS AND WIN A PRIZE

Here's How You Play:

HERE WE GO AGAIN! It's football time -- and time for the annual County SUN Football Contest. If you're a Saturday morning armchair quarterback, you can enter this fun Contest and check up on yourself! Might even win a little money at it or a free theater ticket.

Here's a game to test your skill -- it's a game that the whole family can enjoy. Spread this page out on the kitchen table. Let everybody play. There'll be a new contest each week until about the middle of November. So ready, get set, GO!

- Win $10, $5 or $3 for first, second or third respectively.
- Next five winners may pick up a free ticket to the Palace Theater!
- Pick up all prizes and theater tickets at The SUN.
- The only notification of the winners will be in the following week's issue.
- See this week's football games on this page.
- In each game, check the team you think will win. (You do NOT need to indicate score).
- Unless all games are marked, your entry will be automatically disqualified.
- Then to eliminate as nearly as possible any ties in this fun-test, every entry must have the score marked on "The Tie Breaker" game listed at right.
- Only one entry per person will be qualified, but as many from a family may enter as wish to do so -- except employees and families of the Williamson County SUN.
- You may enter the fun-test on this page. Or you may copy the games on another sheet of paper, indicating your pick in each game

- All entries must be brought to The SUN by 5:00 p.m. Friday or mailed with a postmark not later than 7:00 p.m. Friday of each week. The SUN will grade all entries, and The SUN's decision will be Final and incontestable.
- Have FUN! And patronize the businesses who make this fun-test possible.

Games This Week

Put an 'X' in the parenthesis in front of the team which you think will win that game.

Knowing what is important in job interviews

Work record, appearance, forthrightness all count

By Ron Scherer
Business and financial correspondent of
The Christian Science Monitor

Networkings

Last season the National Geographic specials became collectively the highest rated documentaries ever broadcast on public television. This viewer thought the producers batted about .500 on the films, with "The Incredible Machine" and "the Search for the Great Apes" outstanding among the four offerings.

Maybe this year they'll do even better, as a new quartet of adventuresome films in the National Geographic tradition will air on PBS. Film crews have been at work all over the world gathering footage, since a three-year grant from Gulf has allowed more leeway in production and planning.

Producer Nicolas Noxon took off to the Florida Keys to trace the story of one man's quest for a king's ransom, held captive by the sea for over three centuries -- a quest which has ended in both triumph and tragedy. Treasure, airing Dec. 7, is the resulting film.

Finally, Irwin Rosten, on a path few Westerners have taken, has followed the mighty Volga River to bring to TV an inside look at the world's largest country. The soul of the Russian people is captured in The Volga, air-

New York
Work record, appearance and forthrightness are keys to winning over a professional interviewer, according to the chiefs of several executive search firms here.

These high-level interviewers say a good impression depends on the following:

• Appearance — Looks are important, says Carl Menck, president of Boyden Associates. "We count first impressions about 20 percent. Physical appearance, stature, and attitude are what we look for during the first 15 minutes of an interview."

Although dress and grooming standards have become less conservative over the last few years, Mr. Menck warns that "in certain parts of the country haircuts still count."

In New York, particularly on Wall Street, standards are a little more relaxed, observes Nick Crispi, president of Crispi Wagner & Co., Inc. However, he points out neatness is still considered important. Even on Wall Street, suits are still de rigueur for job interviews.

• Work record — The individual's past record is the most important part of the interview, say the professional grillers.

What interviewers like to see is a steady pattern of growth.

For example, a typical résumé might show an individual graduating from college or earning an MBA, gaining 3 to 5 years of experience with one company, moving on to a higher position as an assistant somewhere for another 3 to 5 years, and then becoming a vice-president.

Salary should march ahead with position. Thus, interviewers like to see an individual's salary about equal to his age by the time he reaches 30. A forty-year-old vice-president should be making $40,000 per year.

On Wall Street, remuneration comes quicker and higher. Observes Mr. Crispi, "It's not unusual for a 30-year-old vice-president to be making a salary ranging into the six figures."

What Mr. Crispi tries to focus on is an individual's "chemistry." He wants to see that the individual spends more than eight hours on the job, and that he also has developed other outside interests.

What if an individual has remained with a firm that developed financial difficulties? Replies Mr. Menck: "He should have good reason for staying there. However, if he moved to the firm to help it, that's a different matter. There are people who like the challenge of turning a company around."

• Forthrightness — Professionals say it is important to act natural during the course of the interview. There should be little difference between conduct in a job interview and one's daily conduct.

Answers should not sound rehearsed. One executive interviewing some recent college graduates recalls they all had the same answer to his question on career objectives. Obviously, a professor advising them had trained them too well.

Another important element, says Paul A. Ray, president of Fort Worth, Texas-based Paul A. Ray & Co., is to look the interviewer "right in the eye." In fielding questions, Mr. Ray hopes to find an individual who can articulate in a straightforward manner — without hedging.

The last part of a job evaluation is reserved for checking an individual's references. This is usually accomplished by talking to competitors, former employers, or possibly customers. Rarely will a job interviewer go directly to someone's boss.

Terry Sanders and Freida Mock have witnessed the fulfillment of an Indian prophecy made by the great Sioux holy man, Black Elk. In the midst of the despair and defeat of his people, he predicted that five generations after his death the Indian people would be reborn. The New Indians, scheduled for Feb. 15, tells of this rebirth.

In Hawaii, producer Dale Bell has documented the heroism of another people who have met the challenge of their ancient heritage. Guided by the stars, currents and ocean swells in a huge double-hulled canoe, they have conquered skeptics and the open Pacific on a 3,000-mile voyage of rediscovery. This Voyage of the Hokule'a will be aired Jan. 18.

Finally, Irwin Rosten, on a path few Westerners have taken, has followed the mighty Volga River to bring to TV an inside look at the world's largest country. The soul of the Russian people is captured in The Volga, air-

Television's most famous comedienne, Lucille Ball, will be saluted in the grand Hollywood tradition in "The Lucille Ball 25th Anniversary Special," Sunday, Nov. 28 over CBS.

Among the industry's noted personalities who will honor Lucy are Desi Arnaz Sr., her former husband and partner, Milton Berle, Carol Burnett, Richard Burton, Sammy Davis, Jr., Bob Hope, Vivian Vance and John Wayne.

He claimed he could get out of anything and he always did. He drew bigger crowds and made more money than any other performer in the history of vaudeville. He spent the last years of his life on a one-man crusade to expose spiritualists as frauds, yet he desperately wanted to believe in them. He was The Great Houdini.

The life and time of Harry Houdini -- magician, escape artist, illusionist -- are explored in "The Great Houdini," an ABC Friday Night Movie entry, airing Oct. 8.

Melville Shavelson, who wrote and directed the film, discovered that there was a lot more to Houdini than just his magic: "When I was first approached about doing this film I had my doubts, since I couldn't see where it would go beyond magic, which didn't really interest me," he said. "But then I began to research his life and I discovered that Houdini was a complex and tormented man, and that his career was mask for a lot of inner turmoil. He became a fascinating subject for a movie."

Paul Michael Glaser, of Starsky & Hutch, plays Houdini in the film, while Sally Struthers, of All in the Family, portrays his wife, Bess. Houdini's domineering mother is played by Oscar-winner Ruth Gordon.

The Sunday SUN

Houdini's mission to expose fraudulent spiritualists derived from his attempt to contact his deceased mother. Just before he, himself, died, he gave Bess a message that he would contact her from the beyond. Controversy has raged for years over whether or not he actually did it.

SU Sports:

Volleyball wins

Southwestern University's volleyball team warmed up for its own tournament in Georgetown this weekend by defeating St. Edward's University and Our Lady of the Lake College in Austin on Wednesday night.

This week Southwestern gets another shot at Howard Payne in Brownwood as they play both the Yellow Jackets and Tarleton State on Tuesday evening beginning at 5:30.

Thursday the Pirates travel to Waco to play Baylor University at 7:30 p.m.

Friday they will be back in Austin to play Concordia Lutheran and St. Edward's at St. Edward's beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Tennis team loses

Houston Baptist University's tennis team defeated Southwestern University 8-1 in Georgetown on Wednesday as both teams opened the fall practice season.

The Houstonians swept all the singles matches and two of the three doubles matches.

The only win salvaged by the Pirate netters was when S.U.'s Mike Moffit and Greg Gordon defeated Houston's Joey Pfister and John Brooks 6-1, 6-3.

In other doubles play, Houston's Randy Mattingley and David Peterson beat David McNitzky and Raymond Khour 6-4, 6-1, and Paul Irwin and Neil Harris beat Ken Mize and Victor Cabara 6-1, 7-5.

In singles play Mattingley beat Gordon 6-2, 6-2; Peterson beat Moffit 6-3, 6-0; Brooks defeated McNitzky 6-0, 6-4; Mize beat Khour 6-2, 6-1; Pfister beat Irwin 6-1, 6-0; and Dick Austin beat Harris 6-2, 6-3.

Southwestern tries perennial conference champion St. Edward's University in Austin beginning at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

WHAT A WAY TO RIDE A HORSE — Gary Dowdy of the University of Texas gymnastic team shows how it's done to those attending the dedication of the Sid W. Richardson Physical Education Center at Southwestern University Saturday.

DETERMINED DEFENDERS (no shirts) Kyle Turner, Frank Hubbard, Mike Harris, Evan Miller, and Gary Henderson team up to get the soccer ball out of their goal area in a scrimmage game Saturday. Jeff Anderson and Ronnie Keith are on offense. The soccer teams, sponsored by the youth recreation league, begin regular games this Saturday.

the way he is raising his children to be tough. He bowed neither to the critics nor to audiences that object to violence. "The critics are pear-shaped gentlemen," he declared. "all timid souls. They were raised that way. They go into the city in the office and sit there and pound away on the typewriter and zip right back to their residential area and that's it. They don't want to be bothered by the physical frictions, and conflicts..."

As for audiences, he had this to offer, "If those people who saw violent pictures objected to the violence in the pictures they wouldn't go see them. And I don't make pictures for those who won't see any violence at all. These people are timid to begin with. They don't want to know that all this exists anywhere."

But Wolf learned that there is more than just a tough-guy-who-made-good behind Bronson's mystique. Clint Walker, a fellow actor appearing with Bronson in "White Buffalo," pointed out another side to the man. "I guess you can say Charlie is withdrawn and moody at times ... he doesn't like the Hollywood scene as such. He doesn't like the Hollywood hoopla. He doesn't like the phony stuff and has a tendency to kind of save himself. He's a painter. I bet many people don't know that."

In instances like these with Charles Bronson, what Jeanne Wolf has provided is more than just an entertaining sneak peak at a celebrity. She observes, "I think television has a unique capability to capture personalities, and experimenting with new ways to develop a basic interview, no matter how fascinating, into a character portrait is an exciting challenge and has made our travels around the country a unique experience."

TIGHT-LIPPED Charles Bronson opens up to Jeanne Wolf in an upcoming segment of her popular talk show.

The women behind Charlie's Angels

Now that ABC has introduced you to that wise-cracking, drop-kicking trio of private eyes, Charlie's Angels, it's time you met the women behind the Angels.

Farrah Fawcett-Majors, who plays the California girl with covergirl looks, is much like her character. While a freshman at the University of Texas in Austin, where she majored in art, Farrah was chosen one of the "Ten Most Beautiful Girls." When her picture was sent to Hollywood in connection with the event, a publicist saw it and invited her to come to the coast for a crack at a film career.

She was signed by Screen Gems, and performed in several of their productions. She also played the ingenue in one of the industry's most disasterous flicks, "Myra Breckenridge."

Farrah's face has also gotten her jobs on over 100 TV commercials for everything from milk to sunglasses.

She and husband Lee Majors live in Bel Air, where she is an avid gardener.

Kate Jackson is an Alabama angel. Fresh from playing Jill Danko for four years on The Rookies, Kate becomes the unofficial leader of Charlie's Angels.

Born in Birmingham, the younger of two daughters of Hogan and Ruth Jackson, Kate began acting while in high school. She attended the University of Mississippi and later Birmingham Southern University as a drama student.

After a year at the Stowe (Vermont) Playhouse, she headed for New York and the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. During her time there, she worked as a model, a tour guide at NBC

TV Star Scene

Amanda Blake, who played Kitty in the long-running Gunsmoke series, comes out of retirement to guest star in "The End of Winter," an upcoming segment of The Quest. She will portray Cattle Sally, the operator of a brothel... Two talented up-and-coming young actors have been cast in NBC's BEST SELLERS: CAPTAINS AND THE KINGS. David Huffman will play Joe Armagh's (Richard Jordan) younger brother, Sean, while Perry King plays Armagh's son Rory. Jordan will be aged quite a bit at this point in the mini-series, since he and King are in real life about the same age.

Everybody has an award show these days, and the country music people are no exception. The nominees have been announced for this year's tribute to America's C&W superstars, to be hosted by Johnny Cash and Roy Clark on CBS Oct. 11. To give you a taste of what to expect, the contenders for Entertainer of the Year are Waylon Jennings, Ronnie Milsap, Willie Nelson, Dolly Parton and Merle Haggard. Hope someone remembers to show up drunk this year. It was the one high spot of last year's telecast.

Word around the set of Streets of San Francisco is that Richard Hatch, who is replacing Michael Douglas, is a fine actor but has one problem. He's a bit of a klutz. This sort of thing does not go over too well in an action series, where the cops are not supposed to walk into walls after questioning a witness. Although, upon reflection, it might just be the thing to lighten up the show a bit.

The Not Ready For Prime Time Players have been sent back to school. For the first time the show will originate away from its home in New York, when three shows will be telecast from college campuses in October.

where he played (and sang) the role of John Adams.

"I made considerably less (than he makes in television), but I loved it," Conrad observes. Now he's taking singing and dancing lessons, and wants to do a musical comedy, either on stage or in films. That may surprise a public that knows him only for his action roles, but the truth of the matter is that Conrad started his career as a nightclub singer in Chicago.

He's a more serious man today than at any time in his 20-odd year career in Hollywood, he admits.

"In 1955, I was part of that early Natalie Wood-Robert Wagner adolescence. In 1965, I had a Top 10 series. Now, I'm glad to be working. I believe age has made me more serious," he notes.

Today, Conrad says he's working harder, and enjoying it more. He became interested in Baa Baa Black Sheep because his new agent felt he had been away from television too long -- three years.

His agent had gotten a hold of the script from the mimeo machine and shipped it to Conrad. It took some convincing that he was right for the part, Conrad recalls.

The series is based on the real-life adventures of Greg "Pappy" Boyington, a maverick World War II Marine flying ace. Boyington wrote the book, then sold the project initially to Columbia. When Columbia Pictures backed out, Universal became interested and developed a two-hour pilot script for NBC. It was Universal that had to be convinced that Conrad was right for the role. The studio was aware of Conrad's past behavior. He was considered tough to work with -- from the studio's point of view. Conrad doesn't deny this.

"When I was doing Wild, Wild West, I never felt I should have been paid as much as I was getting. So I gave a lot of it away. But I also forced the network and the studio to spend more money."

"I had an entourage with me. Anyone who showed up, I'd say, 'Put him to work.' But now, it's all different. I have an entourage of one. I take no phone calls when working. I insist on rehearsals -- everyone -- regardless of how many lines anyone has."

"I've changed considerably in my attitude and conduct."

Universal apparently is convinced. He got the role ("I got a call from my agent at 1:30 a.m., telling me I got it," Conrad remembers). He made the pilot, and went into the series.

"And I'm abiding by the rules," he says. "I'm exhausted by it, but if you can't keep the family straight, then you have to get out of the house."

After 20 years, Conrad gets serious

By DAN LEWIS

After a few bad investments, including an $80,000 washout in a restaurant venture, and a dramatic series which didn't last half a season, Robert Conrad is back in action again -- literally. He has a new series, Baa Baa Black Sheep on NBC Tuesdays, 8-9 p.m., and does what he does best: scrap a lot, bait trouble, and sees a lot of action.

He is best known for his four-year run as star of Wild, Wild West, an action-filled Western series. His costar, Ross Martin, once observed in an interview: "I do my own acting, and Conrad does his own stunts."

When Conrad tried to filter new dimension into his career, by putting on a very conservative business suit and playing a district attorney in a court-room drama series, The D.A., too many viewers refused to accept him out of his best-known image. Despite some fine notices for his performances in two pilot movies that preceded The D.A., the series itself never got off the ground. Conrad has kept pretty much to his mountain retreat in Northern California since the demise of The D.A., occasionally coming down the hill for a movie. For a period, he didn't even have an agent. In Hollywood, that's the quickest ticket to obscurity.

A muscular, wide-shouldered, and solid 160-pounder, Conrad is a physical fitness addict, who came to this interview after first running four miles, as he does every morning. He must stay in shape. He has at least three scraps in every episode, and he still does his own stunts.

"I have to," Conrad declares. "The thrill (of doing his own stunts) is ROBERT CONRAD, as Pappy Boyington, in his new NBC series, Baa Baa Black Sheep.

gone, but not the image."

He's also begun to widen his image as a performer. This past summer, he turned to summer theater, starring in the musical, "1776."

That was in a theater in the round in Sullivan, Ill.

Southwestern announces Artist Series programs

Programs scheduled for the 1976-77 Artist Series at Southwestern University include a symphony orchestra, guitarist, ballet, opera, play and pianist.

Slated to appear October 20 at 8 p.m. in the Alma Thomas Theatre is the San Antonio Symphony Orchestra directed by Roger Melone, associate conductor, in the musical organization's 15th appearance at Southwestern University. Dr. Victor Alessandro, who conducted the orchestra in the previous 14 concerts at the university, is Musical Director Emeritus of the San Antonio Symphony orchestra.

October 28 at 8 p.m., David Grimes, a classical guitarist of California, will give a concert featuring the works of Weiss, Sor, Moreno-Toroba, Villa-Lobos, Berkley, de Falla and Castelnuovo-Tedesco. His tours have included performances at colleges and universities in Texas, Louisiana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Montana and California.

The Dallas Civic Ballet will present December 9 at 8 p.m. repertoire selections including "Combat," "A Shape of Light," variations from "Nutcracker," "Gaiete Parisienne," and "Tarentella Americana," all under the artistic direction of George Skibine, famed choreographer and director, formerly with the Ballet Russe and the Paris Opera.

January 13 dinner theatre is scheduled in the University Commons with dinner at 5 p.m. and presentation of "Hackberry Cavalier" at 6 p.m. by the Alpha-Omega Players directed by Drexel Riley, an alumnus of Southwestern University and former professor of theatre in the School of Fine Arts.

"Hackberry Cavalier" has been adapted from a book of the same name by the late George Sessions Perry, an alumnus of Southwestern University.

The Texas Opera Theater of Houston is booked for "The Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart on February 10 at 8 p.m. in the Alma Thomas Theatre.

Imagine four amorous couples choreographed in dizzy pursuit, adding to this fevered madness the most lyrical music in the world, and it's no wonder that "The Marriage of Figaro" is the oldest opera in the permanent repertoire of every lyric stage in the western world. The characters are delightfully human and the score is straight musical storytelling.

Concluding the 1976-77 Artist Series will be a concert by pianist Robert Blocker of North Carolina, a fine artist of the keyboard. His recent musical activities include a tour with the Fort Worth Symphony and a tour for the South Carolina Tricentennial Arts Commission.

Admission to the Artist Series is by season ticket ($8 for adults and $4 for public school pupils) or single admission at $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for public school pupils. University personnel and students will present lycum/activity cards for admission.

Cindy Mickan is elected Future Teachers' president

For the first time, a chapter of the Future Teachers of America is being established at Georgetown High School.

Two meetings have so far enlisted a membership of 47 students with two staff sponsors, reported Theresa James, club historian. The sponsors, Karen Tatun and Carolyn Sydow, said they had not expected such a good turnout.

Officers elected for the 1976-77 school year include Cindy Mickan, president; Diana Baldwin, vice-president; Mary Lou Rowe, secretary; Lynette Saterfield, treasurer; Stephen Solven, parliamentarian; Theresa James, historian.

FTA will be represented at the homecoming game by Miss Cindy Mickan with Kent Turner as her escort.

Some projects the group has in mind for this school year are tutoring younger students and serving as aides to teachers, sponsoring school improvement activities and attending the state convention. Overall purposes of the Future Teachers of America are to promote the profession of teaching, to serve the community and school and to help all students and teachers in the district.

The Future Teachers of America at Georgetown High School will be sponsored by the local chapter of the Texas State Teachers Association and will be affiliated with both state and national organizations.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sams and Mrs. Christina Biggs spent the weekend visiting in Lubbock in the homes of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Holder spent the weekend in Houston visiting with their daughter. They also attended the Rice-Texas football game.

Back in town for the Georgetown homecoming game and festivities is Joe A. Watson, now of Hobbs, N.M. A former Eagle player, Watson is visiting his sisters in Georgetown, Mrs. Wilkes Thompson of the Wesleyan and Mrs. Jean Sexton.

Mrs. Sam Winters of Austin was a recent visitor with her niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Harris.

THE JOY OF SHARING

There is pleasure in doing things with others. It may be looking at a picture magazine, or riding toys, or for parents it may even be sharing knowledge of the day's events that bring joy. God's people have a desire to share with you in the greatest joy, that of worshiping together in God's House. ATTEND CHURCH

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

NEW CARS

GM scales down new models; Ford, Chrysler still full size

By Charles E. Dole

Automotive editor of The Christian Science Monitor

Detroit

The big-car "battle of the giants" is about to erupt, a final gasp before all carmakers are forced by governmental edict to improve the mileage efficiency of their engines, which means slimming down car size and weight.

The five car divisions of General Motors are taking the lead at squeezing off the fat. The full-size GM car in 1977 is up to half a ton lighter than a comparable '76 model and around 10 inches shorter in overall length — a massive switch for the big-car king.

With few exceptions, GM's full-size line will be about the size of its 1976-model mid-size cars.

Ford Motor Company and Chrysler, by contrast, are sticking with their full-size offerings for another year at least. Both are planning a hard-hitting drive to capture a bigger chunk of the full-size market — motorists who still want to sit behind the wheel of a 2- to 2½-ton automobile. And there are a lot of them.

"There is every indication that demand for full-size cars will continue to be strong," says Richard D. McLaughlin, head of automotive sales for the Chrysler-Plymouth division.

Yet despite the American fondness for big cars, the irrevocable trend is toward smaller, more efficient models. By 1980, all carmakers will have restyled and resized almost everything they build.

Across-the-board average

Federal government mandates already call for an across-the-board average of 18 miles to a gallon in 1978; 19 m.p.g. in 1979; and 20 m.p.g. in 1980. By 1985, if the current law remains on the books, the auto industry will have to meet a 27.5 m.p.g. average for all cars sold in the United States.

The only way to achieve these goals is to reduce the size and weight of the cars and improve the efficiency of the engineering. Chrysler cars, which averaged 16.4 m.p.g. in 1976, are expected to average 16.5 m.p.g. next year.

Despite the slimmed-down image, the GM lineup for 1977 earns high marks for design. The scaled-down full-size cars borrow heavily from the Cadillac Seville, the mini-Cadillac introduced more than a year ago by GM's prestige-car division.

The Seville, in turn, already had copied from the Rolls-Royce, and, although William L. Mitchell, GM's styling vice-president, objects to the suggestion, from the Mercedes as well.

Interiors upgraded

To compensate for the smaller scale of its standard-size cars, GM is upgrading the interiors with a more plush treatment. It is dropping the hardtop from its full-size lineup, moving instead to a pillarless design.

The biggest '77 engine in the GM lineup is Cadillac's 425-cubic-inch V-8, cut back from the 500 of 1976. Pontiac introduces two new engines, one a 151-cubic-inch, cast-iron "4."

An Oldsmobile 350-cubic-inch V-8 diesel is targeted for the 1979 model year, unless emission standards force a change in plans.

GM is introducing a standard-feature electronic spark-timing system on its new front-wheel-drive Olds Toronado, a system which continually adjusts timing in response to information fed to it from the crankshaft, a vacuum sensor, and a coolant-temperature sensor.

Ford Motor Company is dropping its Torino, Elite, and Montego nameplates and is calling its mid-size Ford cars LTD IIs. All Mercury intermediates are called Cougar.

The Ford Pinto gets a new sloping front end of resilient plastic. Higher mileage is expected because of lighter-weight aluminum bumper bars and changes in the drive train. An all-glass hatch also is featured on the Pinto and on the Mercury Bobcat as well.

All carmakers expect better sales performance in 1977.

Liberty Hill NEWS

BY HOWARD N. WILSON

Today is the regular Liberty Hill Market Day for October, and we are expecting the usual large group of friends to be in town for the big event. This is, as we have said before, an excellent opportunity for you to meet and greet your old friends and to make some new ones while in the friendly atmosphere that always prevails in our town — particularly on special events like Market Day.

We want to emphasize there is always something for everyone to do, to buy, or just to enjoy looking and visiting! We hope to see you there!

On Market Day another special event for our community will be the open house that is being held for our Liberty Hill Public Library from 1 until 5 p.m. Saturday. Be sure to visit our Liberty Hill Public Library, which as many of you know, is located in the loft above "The Sweet Shoppe."

The Liberty Hill School Panther band will be giving away a Charolais heifer calf on Liberty Hill Square Sunday afternoon.

Bill Josey, the owner of The Blue Hole Sounds Recording Studio of Liberty Hill, passed away Tuesday, at the age of 54. Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Wilke Clay Funeral Home in Austin.

Bill served in the Navy where he developed a test to measure IQ. He is survived by his wife, Marie; two daughters, Debbie Josey and Mrs. Jan Kosian, both of Austin; two sons, William Jr., of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Jack of Austin, and one grandson, Jad.

Bill was a member of our community just a few years, but he was very active in the community and had many friends — he will surely be missed!

Don't forget to go to the school house tonight for the VFW Game Session, and enjoy the fellowship — there is FUN for everyone!

Wayne Smith, president of The Liberty Hill Cemetery Association, has announced that the annual meeting of the association will be held on the cemetery grounds at 2 p.m. Sunday, October 17. The main item on the agenda will be the election of new officers. There will be routine business conducted at the meeting. All members and anyone else interested in the preservation and the promotion of our beautiful "Garden of Memories" is urged to be present at this meeting!

We are very pleased to know that three of our teachers, Becky Stafford, Jill Sandner and Tom Breed, were not seriously injured when they were involved in an auto accident last Wednesday afternoon. At the time of this writing Jill and Tom are back at work, and Becky, we hope, will soon be back.

A lady whose brother-in-law passed away of lung cancer after two packs of cigarettes for thirty years lamented his passing and said, "All you wives who are nagging your husband, and all you husbands who are pleading with your wives to throw away those filthy killers — and all you young people who are turning your healthy pink young lungs into tar pits at 65 cents a pack, for God's sake, for the sake of those who love you, STOP!"

in towns, too. Whatever kind of a project you're interested in, we can find for you."

WITH TWO NEW CLUBS in Hutto and Cedar Park bringing the total of 12 chapters county-wide, 120 more members than last year (550), and 19 new adult leaders (a total of 134 across the county), Wilkie and Bonner feel they can demonstrate that 4-H is on the grow in this area and providing its individual members "Room to Grow." Bonner attributes the increases to a successful combination of fun, work, and education.

"4-H IS fun," she says, "but it also provides a chance to learn more about what you're personally interested in, as well as development of leadership abilities."

Some of the most popular annual events for Williamson County 4-H members include food and livestock shows, a Dress Revue, demonstration contests, rifle contests, a Christmas Party, vegetable show, leadership lab, ecology conference, and the State 4-H Congress. But the biggest events are the annual Awards Banquet (to be held at 7:30 p.m. in Taylor on Tuesday), the Exchange Program, and 4-H Camp.

"Through exchange (in which Williamson County 4-H members live for a week in the homes of members from other states), we learn how to travel, we learn about differences in lifestyles, and we learn what 4-H life is like elsewhere," said Bonner. The kids are lucky to be able to participate in an exchange program. The annual 4-H Camp at Trinidad is also a highlight."

COMPETITIVE EVENTS where members match their projects promote not only competition, but friendship, she added.

The driving force of the organization, says Bonner, is the core of adult leaders. They help make 4-H meaningful, they provide the meat of it. Nationwide, statistics show that adult leaders give an average of 20 days a year to the organization. The only requirement to become a 4-H leader is to be interested in the kids and to be willing to give some time. Obviously, two people can't operate the entire program. We provide an opportunity for the kids to learn, and they want to learn, but they have to help."

Production of special 4-H events costs about $1,000 each year. The United Way drive chips in $200, with the rest coming from Livestock Show and Sale ads and gate and concession receipts as well as donations from area civic and service organizations. "Money is not really a problem, since the major expense is for individual projects, and each member finances his or her own," said Bonner. "We usually find a source. People across the county have been good friends to 4-H."

THE 12 COUNTY CLUBS are organized under a County Council. This year's Council includes President Gayle Brister of Taylor, Vice-President Ernie Rohlack of Coupland, Secretary Elaine Lang of Thrall, and Treasurer Michael Lidell of Jonah.

Presidents of the various community clubs are Ernie Rohlack at Coupland; Jan Hajda at Granger; Heidi Wernchan at Hutto; Julie Nickels at Leander; Vickie Lescher at Georgetown; Roxann Pople at Schwertner; Kevin Standifer at Jonah; Brett Harbers at Taylor; Elaine Lang at Thrall; and John Badough at Round Rock. Cedar Park and Liberty Hill clubs are still organizing, though Liberty Hill already has organized participation in horse events.

Nationwide, over 5 1/2 million youngsters have pledged "my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service and my health to better living" through 4-H. Of those, 56.1 percent are girls, 43.10 percent boys; 23.2 percent live on farms, 40.1 percent in towns under 10,000 population or in open country; 16.8 percent in towns and cities of 10,000 population; 8.2 percent in suburbs of cities of over 50,000; and 11.7 percent in central cities of over 50,000.

Requirements for becoming a 4-H member are simply that a youngster be 9-19 years of age. "4-H is for everyone, and we welcome everyone regardless of race, creed, religion, or sex," said Bonner.

REGULAR MEETINGS are held by these 4-H clubs:

Coupland, third Tuesday, Coupland School; Granger, third Tuesday, K. C. Hall; Hutto, third Monday, Hutto High School.

Leander, third Monday, Elementary Cafeteria; Georgetown third Monday, V.F.W. Hall; Schwertner, second Tuesday, Community Center.

Jonah, second Tuesday, Community Center; Taylor, third Monday, St. Paul Lutheran Church; Thrall, third Monday, School Cafeteria; and Round Rock, third Monday, Middle School.

"We just had a general discussion and everything went very well."

"WE ARE PLANNING on continuing hoping we can build a barn. Ag teachers read their proposal that they all show animals that had been bought in Williamson County and of course said they would like one livestock show."

Working under Richter's leadership on the building committee are Gower, Jerry Cassens of Jarrell and Alfred Laird of Hutto.

"There were no Taylor or Granger representatives there, but I think the rest of the county was represented," reported Carl Lidell of Georgetown, who served as temporary president for the organization until the Thursday elections.

The breeding end of the show had gone down to practically nothing and Taylor just doesn't have any breeding animals."

Lidell also said that Florence, Georgetown and Taylor agriculture instructors told the Association they were going to support the Georgetown show, "except Emerson Brister (of Taylor High School), who said he would support Taylor and Georgetown."

The October 21 meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the county courtroom on the second floor of the courthouse.

4-H Awards Banquet set Tuesday

4H'ers from around Williamson County will be recognized for their club activities Tuesday night at the annual 4-H Awards Banquet.

Slated to begin at 7 p.m., the banquet will be held at Rudy Mikeska's Barbecue in Taylor.

"In order to attend the Awards Banquet," said Asst. Extension Agent Edward Wilkie, "a 4-H member must have turned in a project record book to the Extension Office."

Those members who qualify will attend free.

All adults will be charged a dollar.

Gold Star awards will be presented during the banquet to the 4-H boy and girl noted for most active participation in the organization.

Award pins will also be distributed to all those who completed projects. The pins, said Wilkie, will be small circles with a symbol representing the specific projects for which they are awarded.

Adult leaders will receive appreciation certificates and year pins.

Four banks — Bank of the Hills in Cedar Park, First National in Schwertner, First Bank and Trust in Bartlett and First State in Jarrell — recorded decreases from last year's deposit figures.

SUMMING UP the agriculture situation for part of Williamson County, Oscar Schwertner, president of Schwertner First National, said, "Maize isn't selling. Farmers are holding off for better prices with a December or January delivery date. The cotton crop was a flop: little is being harvested; most of it was plowed under. It was a complete failure, due to the boll weevil. You've heard the boll weevil song, repeat it and that's us."

Recording an increase of 1,693,361 at City National in Taylor, bank President Ed C. Griffith commented, "Farmers have started selling their cotton and they are getting good prices."

"Our area has been lucky: we've got excellent cotton and excellent prices. A good portion of the cotton was contracted at intervals throughout the year. Cotton on the open market is bringing wonderful prices — 68 to 70 cents a pound. Cotton is being contracted for 60, 65 and 70 cents a pound."

"Many farmers are still holding their grain, hoping the price will increase."

"We don't have the explosive growth you are experiencing in the west end of the county, but we have steady, sound growth in Taylor."

"Payrolls in our area are substantial from local industry, that's an important part of Taylor's economy," Griffin added.

All county bank deposits are listed, with the exception of Union State Bank in Florence, which did not have figures ready at press time.

that we'll be real fortunate, I think."

COVERAGE would extend from the county as a governmental entity to actions of all its workers. Probably a $1,000 deductible policy, the insurance would have a $1 million limit per loss as well as a $1 million maximum annual aggregate, Blumentritt told the court.

"They are not going to pay out more than $1 million in any year, if it's one official of six or whatever," he translated.

While the district judge and district attorney's salaries are not paid by the county, all county employees — including those in the district clerk, constable and peace justices' offices — will receive the additional $50 in their paychecks covering November salaries. Although the annual insurance payment would require most of the two-month pay hike, the $50 added to employees salaries after December 31 would not be needed for insurance coverage.

base. Precinct 4 contributes another 23.98 percent while Precinct 2 yields 20.48 percent. Precinct 3 adds the final 8.26 percent.

ALREADY LARGER than the others, the county's number one precinct additionally enjoyed a faster growth rate, according to the valuation figures.

The $10.7 million surge represented a 21.77 percent rate of growth over last year's total for the precinct.

Only Precinct 3, Williamson's smallest precinct valuation-wise, neared that growth rate over the past year. The Granger area, rising from $9.7 to $10.4 million in total valuations, logged a 7.37 percent valuation increase rate.

Precinct 4 had a growth rate of only 3.90 percent while Precinct 2 suffered a 2.02 percent valuation decline during the year.

Pointing to the Austin population and construction boom which is overflowing into Williamson County, Tax Clerk Charles Gahagan noted, "Precinct 1 goes down into the far part of the county. That's where the activity is; that's an amazing thing to be way out in the middle of the brush — and it's still developing."

IN CONTRAST to tax income, funding for precinct road construction has been divided equally in the past few years.</

There will be fewer people watching the second presidential debate this week (Wednesday, 8:30 p.m.), some folks around Georgetown are predicting.

County salaries raised $50

Commissioners develop insurance purchase avenue

"If the county can't provide (liability) insurance, then I demand a salary increase for the purpose of buying liability for myself and my deputies," Sheriff August Bosshard told commissioners Monday.

And by Wednesday the salary increases were approved.

County employees will be receiving the $50 monthly raise included in 1977 budget figures two months early, commissioners decided Wednesday after meeting with Texas Attorney General representatives Tuesday to discuss employees' liability insurance.

Commissioners approved the raise with the recommendation that employees use it to purchase insurance covering official errors and omissions.

Officials at the Attorney General's office had told commissioners Tuesday that, while the county could not itself purchase the public officials' liability insurance, a salary increase to be spent by the employees for the insurance was a legal and in fact common practice.

"It's a method of county employees and officials contributing to their own liability insurance," explained County Auditor Ben Kurio as County Attorney-elect Bill Stubblefield cautioned that the court could issue no directive demanding that the raises be spent on insurance.

"It's a good program; I think they (county employees) will be tickled pink to get the coverage."

Commissioners determined to get the protection, effective as soon as possible, following a September 22 civil jury verdict in federal district court assessing $99,000 in actual and punitive damages against Bosshard, Chief Deputy Daniel J. Walker, Deputy William Chandler and Jailer Bob Champion.

DISCUSSING COSTS with Southwest Insurance Agent Ross Blumentritt during their Wednesday afternoon meeting, commissioners were told, "I would say anywhere from $6,000 to $10,000 would be a figure to cover all three areas: the sheriff's department; the Emergency Medical Service; and a blanket policy for officeholders and their clerks."

Blumentritt said he would have firm quotations for the county by October 10. Commissioners meet October 11 to approve the 1977 county budget.

The insurance agent also explained that because of the verdict alleging that the four law enforcement officers violated the civil rights of a man who died in the county jail in 1974, insurance for that department would probably be higher.

"There's a possibility that because of the recent suit most companies would not want to write the policy (for the sheriff's office) or would exclude violation of civil rights but include all others, such as unlawful detention, unlawful arrest and so forth," said Blumentritt. "The alternative would be to get what you want and just pay the price."

COMMISSIONERS seemed to agree that, whatever the added price, it would be worth the added protection.

Saying it is difficult to get even tentative insurance costs quotations by telephone, Blumentritt offered the opinion that coverage for the county's law enforcement division — the sheriff, nine deputies, three jailers and five

Fair barn specs may be ready by Oct. 21

Plans for the countywide Fair and Show Association building may be ready for study when the Association meets October 21. Association members learned at a reorganization session held in Jonah on Thursday night.

Dan Richter of Georgetown will chair the building committee.

As part of the reorganization, Erwin Kaatz of Round Rock was elected the group's new president. Calvin Rinn of Thrall resigned the post during the meeting he called on September 23 to disband the Association. The September 23 emergency gathering was called in response to September 22 action by the Taylor Chamber of Commerce, which withdrew its support of the proposed single facility in favor of continued backing for the Taylor livestock show.

REPLACING Eugene Grimm, who also resigned when, instead of disbanding, organization members reaffirmed their commitment to a single showbarn, Bennie Gower of Florence will work as Association vice-president.

Continuing as secretary is Bill Pfluger of Coupland.

Named to the bylaws committee were Gower, chairman, with Richter, Jack Winterrowd of Thrall and Tom Foust of Liberty Hill.

National 4-H Week stresses 'Room to Grow' for members

Williamson County 4-H members and adult leaders will emphasize the versatility and adaptability of their organization with the theme "Room to Grow" during National 4-H Week, which begins Sunday and will run through next Saturday.

From its turn-of-the-century origins as a national school extracurricular movement to promote agriculture among American youth, 4-H has developed into an effort to promote better citizenship and leadership skills among all youngsters, whether rural or urban.

WILLIAMSON COUNTY'S 4-H organization is still agriculturally-oriented, operated by the state's Agricultural Extension Service from offices on the third floor of the county courthouse. The majority of its members still live outside the county's cities. Livestock, clothing, and cooking projects continue to draw the most interest among members.

But with 46 project possibilities ranging from automotive safety to photography to small engine technology, 4-H can no longer be considered a "pig, corn and canning club." The organization's Extension Service coordinators, Carolyn Bonner and Edward Wilkie, say 4-H is also attracting membership from towns and cities.

4-H is no longer just for rural youth," says Bonner. "City kids have needs and interests just like kids in the country. Kids in town like to grow things, for instance, and we have projects that will teach them to cultivate plants in a limited area. With projects like rocketry and dog care, 4-H is changing to meet the needs of those who live

Valuations show Precinct 1 still largest, fastest growing

Williamson County's Precinct 1, which provides more county tax money than any of the other three precincts, also increased its total tax base by as much as $9 million more than any of the others this past year.

Figures released this week by County Tax Assessor William Buck showed a $10,710,621 increase in overall tax valuations from the Georgetown-Round Rock precinct. Countywide, total tax roll in rebase was $12,035,768.

"Who in the world would ever have thought that the county would gain $12 million at one time?" marveled Buck.

In comparison, Taylor's Precinct 4 gained $1,143,545. Precinct 3 in the Granger area added $718,706 to the tax base while Precinct 2 — the Georgetown-Liberty Hill area — took a $537,104 loss in overall valuations.

The $2.1 million reduction in Precinct 2 personal and real estate property value, caused by removal of equipment from Westinghouse Corporation's Georgetown plant during a 1975 shutdown, was offset by increases which limited the final valuation decrease to the half-million-dollar loss. "So actually Precinct 2 gained over a million and a half," said Buck.

Totals on the new tax roll reveal that the Georgetown precinct supports nearly half — an impressive 47.27 percent — of the county's tax

Area bank deposits up once again-by $17 million

by GAYLE BLAKE

Williamson County citizens have $17 million more on deposit in county banks than they had this time last year, indicating the area's economy is healthy and growing stronger.

Last year on September 30 the grand total was $124,452,263 on deposit in the county. It was $140,381,900 as last month ended — a difference of $15,929,637.

Bank personnel contacted by the SUN attributed the rise to hopeful harvest and livestock prospects, local population growth and renewed confidence in the national economy.

They also expressed optimism that the remainder of 1976 will present encouraging economic developments.

Georgetown banks are again among the heavy gainers, although Taylor and Round Rock banks led the way.

First Taylor National leapt $4,440,852 — followed closely by Farmers State in Round Rock with $4,249,156.

Week's news in a nutshell

Congress did an override job on President Ford's veto of a $56.5 billion appropriation bill to finance a broad range of social programs Thursday and also passed a compromise revenue sharing bill, which cleared the way for a Friday adjournment and more inflation shortly afterwards.

MOST RECENT POLLS by Dr. Gallop reveals that the gap between front-running Jimmy Carter and President Ford continues to narrow, although the challenger still has a whopping 8 point lead, overall. A lot of people are now saying Ford will carry Texas, thanks to some politically ill-advised comments by Carter in recent days.

In North Bend, Oregon school is out, although it had scarcely begun for the year. Taxpayers, who must OK the operating budget, balked, so the money isn't available. How long the kids will be out of school is the question school people and parents are frantically trying to answer and solve.

If you didn't get registered by Friday, forget the General Election. You can't vote.

Twenty-five sculptors from all over the world will meet in Liberty Hill October 11-30 to sculpt a monumental piece to donate to that small west Williamson County community. This is all thanks to Mel Fowler, a sculptor of world renown who resides in Liberty Hill and dreamed up the idea of the International Sculpture Symposium.

The sculptors are paying their own way to Liberty Hill, staying with local residents and will be given a taste of Texas hospitality on a nightly basis during their stay.

UNITED FUND drives are under way in Georgetown, Round Rock and Taylor.

Tax valuations in Precinct 1 rose by about $10 million, were down slightly in Precinct 2, and up a bit in Precincts 3 and 4. The greater portion of growth in Precinct 1 is in and around Round Rock, although a lot of it is also coming to the Georgetown area.

The biggest drug bust in the history of Texas occurred in Austin this week when officers seized 26 1/2 pounds of Mexican brown heroin with an estimated street sale value of $10 million. Several Austin and Corpus Christi people were arrested and jailed.

FOCUS

Why leaner '77 cars cost more

By Charles E. Dole

When you buy a pound of hamburger these days, you're likely to pay anywhere from 79 cents to $1.39, depending on how much fat the meat contains. With less fat, the price goes up.

And so it is with a new car. General Motors has just jacked up the price of its slimmed-down '77-model cars an average 4.9 percent; yet the cars themselves weigh anywhere from 700 pounds to half a ton less than in 1976.

So the public is being cheated, right? Well, let's figure it out.

Traditionally in the auto business, there has been a direct relationship between changes in weight and changes in price — in most cases, that is.

Rule of thumb

"The rule of thumb has been that for each additional pound, the wholesale price goes up by 60 or 65 cents," says David

Healey, a financial analyst for Drexel Burnham & Co., a New York investment firm. Therefore, if the weight is reduced, the wholesale price should drop by the same amount.

The 1976 Buick Le Sabre had a base wholesale price of about $3,800 with a weight of about 4,500 pounds — or 84 cents a pound on the wholesale base price. The retail customer has to add on the dealer markup of about 20 percent, plus options, transportation and pre-delivery charges, taxes, etc.

Weighing the '77s

Now the 1977 price increase on the substantially lighter-weight cars is an average 4.9 percent although it varies by car line, model, and the like. "This includes just the base vehicle and not the options," reminds Mr. Healey.

"So I get around $1.10 to $1.15 a pound just on the suggested retail for the '77 base vehicle," he adds. "The options add more price than weight so the total cost per pound to the motorist probably figures out to about $1.25."

Arvid Jouppi, a Detroit stock-market analyst, figures the average per-pound cost of the 1977-model cars at $1.50, up from $1.20 in 1976.

The Detroit analyst declares that the domestic car industry is spending tens of billions of dollars in the 10-year period ending in the mid-1980s to resize its entire car line so as to meet mandated federal government automotive mileage figures which begin to take effect next year. GM alone says it is spending $15 billion.

High-cost materials

"Any saving in reducing the weight of their cars will be more than wiped out by higher production and capital-goods costs, plus the increasing use of more sophisticated materials," says Mr. Jouppi.

GM points to the higher cost of lightweight steel, plastics, aluminum, and more rust-inhibiting parts and processes. It has cut about 60 pounds out of car bumpers, for instance, by using higher-cost aluminum reinforcements instead of steel. And Oldsmobile is using aluminum hoods.

GM says that steel is up 8 percent in cost in the past year while labor costs are up 9 percent. Further, the new labor contracts due this fall will further crank up the costs of building a car, while productivity is not keeping pace.

If the old rule-of-thumb had worked out in the new GM models, then a weight saving of 700 pounds, on the basis of 64 cents a pound wholesale, would have meant a saving of about $450 per car to the manufacturer — and ultimately a saving to the car buyer.

"Yet GM is probably making no more than another $100 to $200 per car," suggests Mr. Healey. Yet without the savings, the price hike on the '77 cars might have been more.

Further, the downsizing is going to continue, not only at GM but with all other automakers as well.

On a per-pound basis there seems to be less value in the down-sized cars. "But that isn't the way to look at it," says Mr. Healey. "You have to look at what you're getting in terms of gasoline mileage, interior room, restyling, etc."

Clearly, it is the way the industry is moving — $1 per pound, or not.

Job referrals provided through W-BCO office

Looking for a job?

One of the first steps in job hunting is to get initial information about where open positions can be located.

And one of the closest sources of such job information is through the CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) program at Williamson-Burnet County Opportunities office (a Community Action Agency, CAA) at 115 1/2 W. Seventh St.

"Although CETA deals mainly with placing unskilled persons in job training," explained Kathy Swift, CETA coordinator at the Georgetown office, "services are being expanded to include job opening information. Job seekers interested in any type of employment, from unskilled to the professionals, are encouraged to take advantage of the service."

"Currently, listings of jobs open with the City of Austin and the State Comptroller's Office are received twice a month. Listings from Travis County and the Mental Health-Mental Retardation office are received every week.

"We ask that persons using the service fill out a referral form to take to the interview. The employer is asked to complete it and return it to the agency. It lets us know what sort of attention they got and whether they were interviewed, and it lets employers know we are referring persons."

"We hope that local employers will remember our services and let us know when they have a job opening so that we can pass the word along to job seekers," she said.

Kathy can be contacted at her office by calling 863-6561.

THE LOW LANGUAGE OF THE HIGH-UPS
The "hells" and "damns" for which Harry Truman was criticized are not very shocking anymore.

Not alongside the obscene gestures and oral vulgarisms of some of this year's campaigners.

PERHAPS THE HIGH-UPS will throw enough of this low language our way so that eventually we'll tolerate, accept and repeat it, also.

But I'm not ready for it.

Of all our recent Presidents, Eisenhower would have been most likely to have a barracks vocabulary but I can't remember ever having heard such talk from him.

J. F. K.'s image was tarnished after his death with revelations about playgirls in the White House but he had the decency never to throw dirt in our faces.

Privately, Lyndon Johnson reportedly had a foul mouth — but never publicly.

AND DISAPPOINTING as was some of the language on the Nixon tapes, his public utterances were discreetly guarded.

Some will argue that it's more "honest," that it's "less hypocritical" just to let it all hang out.

But it seems to me that your rights end where my nose begins—and that goes for my ears, also.

And when Vice President Rockefeller responded to an obscene gesture by a college student heckler with an obscene gesture of his own he serves mostly to confirm undergraduate disrespect for politicians, per se.

If our leaders are no better than anybody else, what claim have they to leadership?

It's the D. C. social whirl which spawns most of these ribald utterances. And when they get laughs on the cocktail circuit, the Mrs. Fords and the Mrs. Mondales parrot them in public.

"The Democrats are doing it to their secretaries and the Republicans are doing it to the country," said Mrs. Mondale.

BUT OUT HERE in the nine-tenths of this country where we don't track barn dirt into the house such a crudity is at least unladylike.

A recent issue of the Chicago Sun-Times sold out in a hurry. Its front page headlined: SEX, SIN AND TEMPTATION.

It was about Jimmy Carter's interview in Playboy magazine.

That interview quoted Carter using vulgarisms which are not acceptable even on the late night talk shows.

Then Carter, in Pittsburgh, said he'd not yet read his interview in Playboy. With a grin he explained that he'd read "the other parts of the magazine first."

CARTER CAMPAIGNERS are hoping he'll gain more than he loses by being candid — but the Mister Nice Guy image sure is getting blurred.

Mirror of opinion

What recession?

Was it really the worst recession since the Great Depression?

Jobs were going begging while unemployment figures soared and unemployment compensation was extended from 26 weeks to 52 weeks and to 65 weeks for "supplementary benefits." Can it be that unemployment "insurance" — which in sensible, modest form is a requisite for any advanced, civilized nation — has been overextended into a counterincentive to work? The facts do seem to point toward that unhappy conclusion.

Harvard economist Martin Feldstein, in a study for the Brookings Institution, finds that when unemployment was at its peak last year, about 47 per cent of those laid off were not immediately seeking reemployment. Rather, they were using the time to do such things as repair and put fresh paint on their homes.

One reason is that the attractiveness of unemployment compensation is further enhanced by the fact that, because it is not taxed like other income, the net difference between taxed income when a man or woman is employed and when he or she is laid off may be very small. That is why, of course, Florida resorts boomed during the recession as hordes of jobless northerners took their unemployment compensation South to wait out the recession in the sun.

One would do well to keep all this firmly in mind when he hears in the presidential campaign the highly expensive Humphrey-Hawkins so-called full-employment bill being touted. It is simply a matter of understanding that if one designs his public welfare programs so that not working is nearly as attractive financially as working for a living, socialist planning and billions of tax dollars for job subsidies will represent merely the wrong solution for a misdefined problem clung to, curiously by politicians and ideologues who fondly recollect the Great Depression — a return to which their way is a sure way.

★Debate Round 2: format to stay the same

As to the possibility that the candidates might be permitted to question each other, the league official says, "This has always been an option."

"The subject is still around," she told the Monitor "but it's only a mite closer" to coming about.

Rumors acknowledged

In the wake of the debate in Philadelphia, there have been stories which indicated that the candidates, themselves — and particularly, Democrat Jimmy Carter — were "pressuring" for changes that would enliven the debate and allow for some real confrontation.

But a league official says, "There has been absolutely no pressure from the candidates" for changes. "There have been no demands."

The subject of next week's debate is foreign policy and national defense. There is no indication that the theme will be broadened to permit questions on other topics.

However, discussions between League officials and representatives of both Mr. Ford and Mr. Carter continue. Conceivably, it seems, there might be some further minor changes in format arrived at.

This standing pat on format comes at a time when reporters on public reaction, plus several polls of viewer attitudes, are indicating that much of the 90 million-plus TV audience last Thursday (Sept. 23) night found the stiff, compartmentalized, and highly formalized debate context something less than compelling television fare.

Widely tagged as 'boring'

If there was any one consensus on the evening performance, it seemed to be that the viewers found the initial debate rather boring. Certainly neither candidate electrified the viewers. Neither seemed able to arouse much enthusiasm even among his own supporters who were looking in.

But within the Ford camp there was little talk of wanting any change in the framework of the show simply because the Ford people are believing those polls which showed he came out ahead in the eyes of the viewers.

"Why change a good thing — or, at least, something that was good for us," a Ford aide said.

On the other hand, the Carter people seem to be at least less than forceful in seeking to drive through any changes — despite reports that the candidate, himself, is anxious for a direct exchange with Mr. Ford.

This may be because, on second thought, the Carterites have raised the question, with themselves, as to whether Mr. Carter would gain in such a confrontation. This may be particularly true in the coming debate where Mr. Ford — because of his access to foreign policy information unavailable to Mr. Carter — might have the advantage in a head-to-head encounter.

One of the reasons hearing loss problems have become so widespread in recent years is that so few Americans actively seek to safeguard their hearing ability, officials point out. Avoid prolonged or continuous exposure to harmful noise and protect your hearing, they urge.

Considered one of our nation's major handicapping disabilities, hearing loss problems rob at least one out of every 15 Americans of their ability to communicate clearly.

Results of Straw Poll

conducted by Megaphone 9/ 28/ 76

If Southwestern University students are typical, then Gerald Ford and Alan Steelman will win the campuses of Texas with a landslide vote, a poll conducted by the campus newspaper, The Megaphone, this week indicated.

The Megaphone polled 289 students, which is a large percentage as compared to the samplings of the Gallop and Harris polls, and found the Republicans running far out front.

Southwestern names 16 to honor list

One hundred and sixty students made the academic distinction list at Southwestern University for the spring semester. Dean F. B. Clifford has announced.

To be included on the list, a student had to take 12 or more hours of class work and maintain a grade point average of 3.6 or higher out of a possible 4.

Those on the list include Albert Ainsworth, David Ainsworth, Mildred Allen, Dana Allison, Susan Anthony, William Ashley Jr., Nancy Avery, Theodore Barnett, Bradley Beard, Maria Betancourt, Katherine Black, Ricque Brister, Barrie Browder, Joette Breeding, Edith Brown and Ray Bunnage.

Also, Gina Busby, Sheryl Byrd, Dorothy Caldwell, Sharon Camp, Dawn Cardwell, Connie Casad, Nancy Chadwick, Steve Chaloupka, Thomas Chandler, Sheryl Chisoln, Barbara Cilley, Katherine Clement, Mary Clifford, James Cohen, Sue Cole, Christie Cook, Joe Cross, John Currier, Elbert David, Mary Davis, Mark Dawson,

Refreshments will be served, and plans will be formalized for a rummage sale to be held on October 16. Members may bring items for the sale to the meeting.

Bayless and Wiggle Shell, directors.

Optimists' Governor-elect Ben Alley of Austin addressed the clubs prior to the installation, stressing the purposes of Optimism and encouraging participation by club members in various club projects designed for the betterment of the youth of the community.

Outgoing president Del Mills expressed his thanks for having the opportunity of serving the club and incoming president Burl Brooks accepted the post with a brief speech.

Prior to Alley's address, a Georgetown barbershop quartet presented an entertaining program unique in composition and inviting group participation. Quartet members were Dr. Bob McCay, Ned Snead, Ray Mickan and Paul Petkovsky.

Guests and officers introduced during the dinner included: secretary-treasurer Red Mitchell and his wife, Optimists' Lt. Governor-elect Bill Kennedy of Temple, Mrs. Southworth and her husband, Alley and his wife, Flo Mills, and Brooks and his wife.

Del Mills presided over the installation ceremonies and chaplain Ed Breeding offered the invocation. The pledge of allegiance to the flag closed the meeting.

Cowbelles will meet in Jonah Monday night

The Blackland Cowbelles will meet at the Jonah School on Monday, October 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Keith Chapman, newly elected president, has announced that all Central Texas women and girls interested in promoting the beef industry are invited to attend and are eligible to join.

Refreshments will be served, and plans will be formalized for a rummage sale to be held on October 16. Members may bring items for the sale to the meeting.

Bartlett homecoming scheduled October 8, 9

If you are enjoying the floats, children's bicycles, wagons and pets to be judged. Also for the children, a fish pond is among entertainment scheduled during the day.

But not in Georgetown. Bartlett, a smaller community to the northeast, has scheduled its 1976 Cotton Pickin' Homecoming for October 8 and 9.

After the 8 p.m. football game Friday night, when the Bartlett Bulldogs host the Florence Buffaloes, a full day is planned for Saturday.

Bartlett exes and visitors are invited to register at Town Hall anytime after 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

The annual parade starts at 10 a.m. with local and out-of-town

FOOTBALL CONTEST PICK THE WINNERS AND WIN A PRIZE

Here's How You Play:

HERE WE GO AGAIN! It's football time -- and time for the annual County SUN Football Contest. If you're a Saturday morning armchair quarterback, you can enter this fun Contest and check up on yourself! Might even win a little money at it or a free theater ticket.

Here's a game to test your skill -- it's a game that the whole family can enjoy. Spread this page out on the kitchen table. Let everybody play. There'll be a new contest each week until about the middle of November.

So ready, get set, GO!

- Win $10, $5 or $3 for first, second or third respectively.
- Next five winners may pick up a free ticket to the Palace Theater!
- Pick up all prizes and theater tickets at The SUN.
- The only notification of the winners will be in the following week's issue.
- See this week's football games on this page.
- In each game, check the team you think will win. (You do NOT need to indicate score).
- Unless all games are marked, your entry will be automatically disqualified.
- Then to eliminate as nearly as possible any ties in this fun-test, every entry must have the score marked on "The Tie Breaker" game listed at right.
- Only one entry per person will be qualified, but as many from a family may enter as wish to do so -- except employees and families of the Williamson County SUN.
- You may enter the fun-test on this page. Or you may copy the games on another sheet of paper, indicating your pick in each game

- All entries must be brought to The SUN by 5:00 p.m. Friday or mailed with a postmark not later than 7:00 p.m. Friday of each week. The SUN will grade all entries, and The SUN's decision will be Final and incontestable.
- Have FUN! And patronize the businesses who make this fun-test possible.

Knowing what is important in job interviews

Work record, appearance, forthrightness all count

By Ron Scherer

Networkings

Last season the National Geographic specials became collectively the highest rated documentaries ever broadcast on public television. This viewer thought the producers battled about .500 on the films, with "The Incredible Machine" and "the Search for the Great Apes" outstanding among the four offerings.

Maybe this year they'll do even better, as a new quartet of adventuresome films in the National Geographic tradition will air on PBS. Film crews have been at work all over the world gathering footage, since a three-year grant from Gulf has allowed more leeway in production and planning.

Producer Nicolas Noxon took off to the Florida Keys to trace the story of one man's quest for a king's ransom, held captive by the sea for over three centuries -- a quest which has ended in both triumph and tragedy. Treasure, airing Dec. 7, is the resulting film.

New York
Work record, appearance and forthrightness are keys to winning over a professional interviewer, according to the chiefs of several executive search firms here.

These high-level interviewers say a good impression depends on the following:

• Appearance -- Looks are important, says Carl Menck, president of Boyden Associates. "We count first impressions about 20 percent. Physical appearance, stature, and attitude are what we look for during the first 15 minutes of an interview."

Although dress and grooming standards have become less conservative over the last few years, Mr. Menck warns that "in certain parts of the country haircuts still count."

In New York, particularly on Wall Street, standards are a little more relaxed, observes Nick Crispi, president of Crispi Wagner & Co., Inc. However, he points out neatness is still considered important. Even on Wall Street, suits are still de rigueur for job interviews.

• Work record -- The individual's past record is the most important part of the interview, say the professional grillers.

What interviewers like to see is a steady pattern of growth.

For example, a typical résumé might show an individual graduating from college or earning an MBA, gaining 3 to 5 years of experience with one company, moving on to a higher position as an assistant somewhere for another 3 to 5 years, and then becoming a vice-president.

Salary should march ahead with position. Thus, interviewers like to see an individual's salary about equal to his age by the time he reaches 30. A forty-year-old vice-president should be making $40,000 per year.

On Wall Street, remuneration comes quicker and higher. Observes Mr. Crispi, "It's not unusual for a 30-year-old vice-president to be making a salary ranging into the six figures."

What Mr. Crispi tries to focus on is an individual's "chemistry." He wants to see that the individual spends more than eight hours on the job, and that he also has developed other outside interests.

What if an individual has remained with a firm that developed financial difficulties? Replies Mr. Menck: "He should have good reason for staying there. However, if he moved to the firm to help it, that's a different matter. There are people who like the challenge of turning a company around."

• Forthrightness -- Professionals say it is important to act natural during the course of the interview. There should be little difference between conduct in a job interview and one's actual day-to-day demeanor.

Answers should not sound rehearsed. One executive interviewing some recent college graduates recalls they all had the same answer to his question on career objectives. Obviously, a professor advising them had trained them too well.

Another important element, says Paul A. Ray, president of Fort Worth, Texas-based Paul A. Ray & Co., is to look the interviewer "right in the eye." In fielding questions, Mr. Ray hopes to find an individual who can articulate in a straightforward manner -- without hedging.

The last part of a job evaluation is reserved for checking an individual's references. This is usually accomplished by talking to competitors, former employers, or possibly customers. Rarely will a job interviewer go directly to someone's boss.

Houdini's mission to expose fraudulent spiritualists derived from his attempt to contact his deceased mother. Just before he himself died, he gave Bess a message that he would contact her from the beyond. Controversy has raged for years over whether or not he actually did it.

partner, Milton Berle, Carol Burnett, Richard Burton, Sammy Davis, Jr., Bob Hope, Vivian Vance and John Wayne.

He claimed he could get out of anything and he always did. He drew bigger crowds and made more money than any other performer in the history of vaudeville. He spent the last years of his life on a one-man crusade to expose spiritualists as frauds, yet he desperately wanted to believe in them. He was The Great Houdini.

The life and time of Harry Houdini -- magician, escape artist, illusionist -- are explored in "The Great Houdinis," an ABC Friday Night Movie entry, airing Oct. 8.

Melville Shavelson, who wrote and directed the film, discovered that there was a lot more to Houdini than just his magic: "When I was first approached about doing this film I had my doubts, since I couldn't see where it would go beyond magic, which didn't really interest me," he said. "But then I began to research his life and I discovered that Houdini was a complex and tormented man, and that his career was a mask for a lot of inner turmoil. He became a fascinating subject for a movie."

Paul Michael Glaser, of Starsky & Hutch, plays Houdini in the film, while Sally Struthers, of All in the Family, portrays his wife, Bess. Houdini's domineering mother is played by Oscar-winner Ruth Gordon.

AN UPSIDE DOWN VIEW of the new Sid W. Richardson Physical Center is demonstrated by Gary Dowdy of the Univ. of Texas gymnastic team. The Longhorn team was a popular part of the dedication program held in the 2,000 seat gymnasium Saturday morning in Georgetown.

SU Sports:

Volleyball wins

Southwestern University's volleyball team warmed up for its own tournament in Georgetown this weekend by defeating St. Edward's University and Our Lady of the Lake College in Austin on Wednesday night.

This week Southwestern gets another shot at Howard Payne in Brownwood as they play both the Yellow Jackets and Tarleton State on Tuesday evening beginning at 5:30.

Thursday the Pirates travel to Waco to play Baylor University at 7:30 p.m.

Friday they will be back in Austin to play Concordia Lutheran and St. Edward's at St. Edward's beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Tennis team loses

Houston Baptist University's tennis team defeated Southwestern University 8-1 in Georgetown on Wednesday as both teams opened the fall practice season.

The Houstonians swept all the singles matches and two of the three doubles matches.

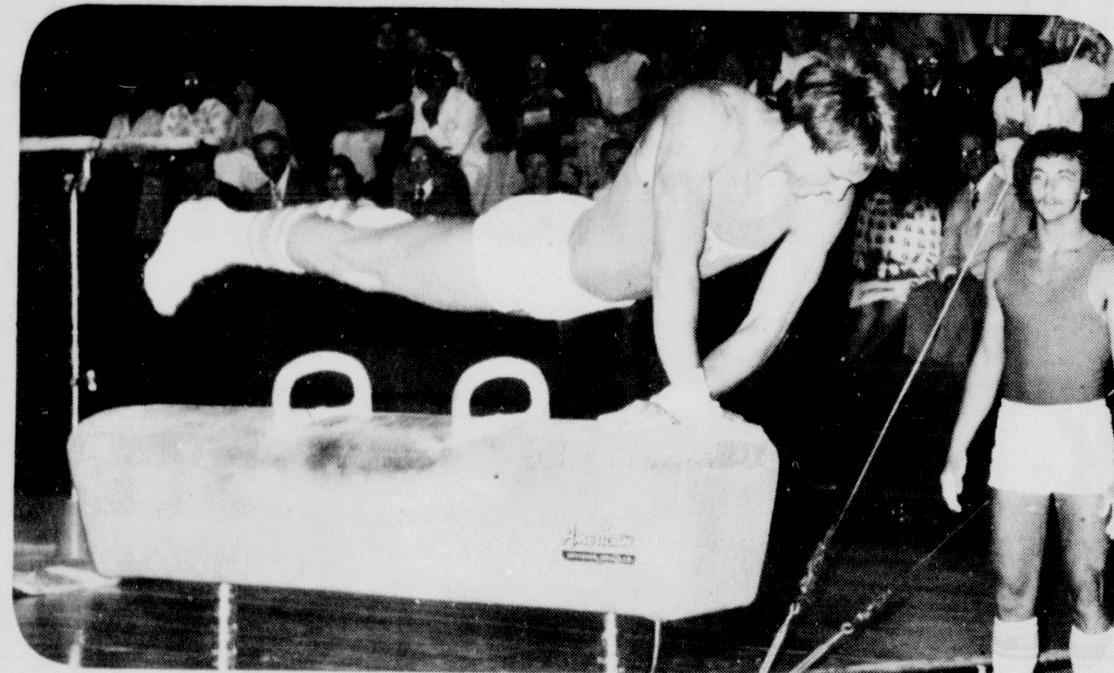

The only win salvaged by the Pirate netters was when S.U.'s Mike Moffit and Greg Gordon defeated Houston's Joey Pfister and John Brooks 6-1, 6-3.

In other doubles play, Houston's Randy Mattingley and David Peterson beat David McNitzky and Raymond Khouw 6-4, 6-1, and Paul Irwin and Neil Harris beat Ken Mize and Victor Cabara 6-1, 7-5.

In singles play Mattingley beat Gordon 6-2, 6-2; Peterson beat Moffit 6-3, 6-0; Brooks defeated McNitzky 6-0, 6-4; Mize beat Khouw 6-2, 6-1; Pfister beat Irwin 6-1, 6-0; and Dick Austin beat Harris 6-2, 6-3.

Southwestern tries perennial conference champion St. Edward's University in Austin beginning at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

WHAT A WAY TO RIDE A HORSE — Gary Dowdy of the University of Texas gymnastic team shows how it's done to those attending the dedication of the Sid W. Richardson Physical Education Center at Southwestern University Saturday.

DETERMINED DEFENDERS (no shirts) Kyle Turner, Frank Hubbard, Mike Harris, Evan Miller, and Gary Henderson team up to get the soccer ball out of their goal area in a scrimmage game Saturday. Jeff Anderson and Ronnie Keith are on offense. The soccer teams, sponsored by the youth recreation league, begin regular games this Saturday.

Jeanne Wolf hits the road

JEANNE WOLF, still unmasking the person beneath the celebrity.

Jeanne Wolf has left the studio behind her. She's hit the streets to bring viewers on-location interviews, when Jeanne Wolf With returns to PBS on October 14 for its third season.

The new format for the popular talk show is intended to bring viewers candid glimpses of celebrities at work, at home and at play.

"We wanted to try to give the viewer a variety of perspectives on each guest," says Wolf. "We felt that while the studio interviews had been revealing, seeing the same person in a different setting would provide another dimension. And we discovered we were right. Somehow, the guest isn't quite so 'on' and the conversation seems less predictable on location. Flip Wilson is a different person on the golf course. Marvin Hamlisch is twice as much fun when he sits down at the piano and Jean Marsh is totally candid when I walk with her on the beach."

Others she has caught up with include Charles Bronson, who spoke with Wolf in Hollywood on the set of his latest Dino De Laurentiis action epic, "White Buffalo." What resulted from the meeting is an unusually insightful look at Hollywood's toughest and most tight-lipped superstar.

Bronson commented on everything from the mayhem in his own films to the way he is raising his children to be tough. He bowed neither to the critics nor to audiences that object to violence. "The critics are pear-shaped gentlemen," he declared. "all timid souls. They were raised that way. They go into the city in the office and sit there and pound away on the typewriter and zip right back to their residential area and that's it. They don't want to be bothered by the physical frictions, and conflicts..."

As for audiences, he had this to offer. "If those people who saw violent pictures objected to the violence in the pictures they wouldn't go see them. And I don't make pictures for those who won't see any violence at all. These people are timid to begin with. They don't want to know that all this exists anywhere."

But Wolf learned that there is more than just a tough-guy-who-made-good behind Bronson's mystique. Clint Walker, a fellow actor appearing with Bronson in "White Buffalo," pointed out another side to the man. "I guess you can say Charlie is withdrawn and moody at times ... he doesn't like the Hollywood scene as such. He doesn't like the Hollywood hoopla. He doesn't like the phony stuff and has a tendency to kind of save himself. He's a painter. I bet many people don't know that."

In instances like these with Charles Bronson, what Jeanne Wolf has provided is more than just an entertaining sneak peak at a celebrity. She observes, "I think television has a unique capability to capture personalities, and experimenting with new ways to develop a basic interview, no matter how fascinating, into a character portrait is an exciting challenge and has made our travels around the country a unique experience."

TIGHT-LIPPED Charles Bronson opens up to Jeanne Wolf in an upcoming segment of her popular talk show.

Her first TV role was in Dark Shadows, which she did for nine months. Then Hollywood beckoned and she did a number of TV films. Recently, Kate made a theatrical release with David Carradine called "Thunder and Lightning."

Kate enjoys reading everything from comics to classics. She plays guitar and is learning the piano. A tennis player, Kate also enjoys skiing and horseback riding and is taking flying lessons.

Like the character she plays, Jaclyn Smith was born in Houston, Tex. The daughter of a dentist, Jaclyn started her career in the performing arts by studying ballet at the age of three.

She performed at the Houston Community Playhouse until she was graduated from high school. Jaclyn then studied drama and psychology at Trinity University in San Antonio. She soon tried her hand in New York.

While there, Jaclyn conducted ballet classes for underprivileged kids in the Head Start program. Then opportunities arose on the West Coast. Her television roles include appearances on McCloud, Get Christy Love, The Rookies, and a recurrent role on Switch.

In great demand as a model, Jaclyn has done 75 commercials over the past eight years.

She loves children and plans to work in another project involving young kids when she has more available time. Her love of animals has been transferred to the character she plays, with her French poodle, Albert, becoming a member of the cast.

After a year at the Stowe (Vermont) Playhouse, she headed for New York and the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. During her time there, she worked as a model, a tour guide at NBC

TV Star Scene

Amanda Blake, who played Kitty in the long-running Gunsmoke series, comes out of retirement to guest star in "The End of Winter," an upcoming segment of The Quest. She will portray Cat-tle Sally, the operator of a brothel... Two talented up-and-coming young actors have been cast in NBC's BEST SELLERS: CAPTAINS AND THE KINGS. David Huffman will play Joe Armagh's (Richard Jordan) younger brother, Sean, while Perry King plays Armagh's son Rory. Jordan will be aged quite a bit at this point in the mini-series, since he and King are in real life about the same age.

Everybody has an award show these days, and the country music people are no exception. The nominees have been announced for this year's tribute to America's C&W superstars, to be hosted by Johnny Cash and Roy Clark on CBS Oct. 11. To give you a taste of what to expect, the contenders for Entertainer of the Year are Waylon Jennings, Ronnie Milsap, Willie Nelson, Dolly Parton and Mel Tillis. Hope someone remembers to show up drunk this year. It was the one high spot of last year's telecast.

Word around the set of Streets of San Francisco is that Richard Hatch, who is replacing Michael Douglas, is a fine actor but has one problem. He's a bit of a klutz. This sort of thing does not go over too well in an action series, where the cops are not supposed to walk into walls after questioning a witness. Although, upon reflection, it might just be the thing to lighten up the show a bit.

The Not Ready For Prime Time Players have been sent back to school. For the first time the show will originate away from its home in New York, when three shows will be telecast from college campuses in October.

where he played (and sang) the role of John Adams.

"I made considerably less (than he makes in television), but I loved it," Conrad observes. Now he's taking singing and dancing lessons, and wants to do a musical comedy, either on stage or in films. That may surprise a public that knows him only for his action roles, but the truth of the matter is that Conrad started his career as a nightclub singer in Chicago.

He's a more serious man today than at any time in his 20-odd year career in Hollywood, he admits.

"In 1955, I was part of that early Natalie Wood-Robert Wagner adolescence. In 1965, I had a Top 10 series. Now, I'm glad to be working. I believe age has made me more serious," he notes.

Today, Conrad says he's working harder, and enjoying it more. He became interested in Baa Baa Black Sheep because his new agent felt he had been away from television too long -- three years.

His agent had gotten a hold of the script from the mimeo machine and shipped it to Conrad. It took some convincing that he was right for the part, Conrad recalls.

The series is based on the real-life adventures of Greg "Pappy" Boyington, a maverick World War II Marine flying ace. Boyington wrote the book, then sold the project initially to Columbia. When Columbia Pictures backed out, Universal became interested and developed a two-hour pilot script for NBC. It was Universal that had to be convinced that Conrad was right for the role. The studio was aware of Conrad's past behavior. He was considered tough to work with -- from the studio's point of view. Conrad doesn't deny this.

"When I was doing Wild, Wild West, I never felt I should have been paid as much as I was getting. So I gave a lot of it away. But I also forced the network and the studio to spend more money."

"I had an entourage with me. Anyone who showed up, I'd say, 'Put him to work.' But now, it's all different. I have an entourage of one. I take no phone calls when working. I insist on rehearsing -- everyone -- regardless of how many lines anyone has."

"I've changed considerably in my attitude and conduct."

Universal apparently is convinced. He got the role ("I got a call from my agent at 1:30 a.m., telling me I got it," Conrad remembers). He made the pilot, and went into the series.

"And I'm abiding by the rules," he says. "I'm exhausted by it, but if you can't keep the family straight, then you have to get out of the house."

After 20 years, Conrad gets serious

By DAN LEWIS

After a few bad investments, including an $80,000 washout in a restaurant venture, and a dramatic series which didn't last half a season, Robert Conrad is back in action again -- literally. He has a new series, Baa Baa Black Sheep on NBC Tuesdays, 8-9 p.m., and does what he does best, scrap a lot, bait trouble, and sees a lot of action.

He is best known for his four-year run as star of Wild, Wild West, an action-

Southwestern announces Artist Series programs

Programs scheduled for the 1976-77 Artist Series at Southwestern University include a symphony, orchestra, guitarist, ballet, opera, play and pianist.

Slated to appear October 20 at 8 p.m. in the Alma Thomas Theatre is the San Antonio Symphony Orchestra directed by Roger Melone, associate conductor, in the musical organization's 15th appearance at Southwestern University. Dr. Victor Alessandro, who conducted the orchestra in the previous 14 concerts at the university, is Musical Director Emeritus of the San Antonio Symphony orchestra.

October 28 at 8 p.m., David Grimes, a classical guitarist of California, will give a concert featuring the works of Weiss, Sor, Moreno-Toroba, Villa-Lobos, Berkeley, de Falia and Casteinuovo-Tedesco. His tours have included performances at colleges and universities in Texas, Louisiana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Montana and California.

The Dallas Civic Ballet will present December 9 at 8 p.m. repertoire selections including "Combat," "A Shape of Light,"

"Nutcracker," "Gaiete Parisienne," and "Tarentella Americana," all under the artistic direction of George Skibine, famed choreographer and director, formerly with the Ballet Russe and the Paris Opera.

January 13 dinner theatre is scheduled in the University Commons with dinner at 5 p.m. and presentation of "Hackberry Cavalier" at 6 p.m. by the Alpha-Omega Players directed by Drexel Riley, an alumnus of Southwestern University and former professor of theatre in the School of Fine Arts.

"Hackberry Cavalier" has been adapted from a book of the same name by the late George Sessions Perry, an alumnus of Southwestern University.

The Texas Opera Theater of Houston is booked for "The Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart on February 10 at 8 p.m. in the Alma Thomas Theatre.

Imagine four amorous couples choreographed in dizzy pursuit, adding to this fevered madness the most lyrical music in the world, and it's no wonder that "The Marriage of Figaro" is the oldest opera in the permanent repertoire of every lyric stage in the western world. The characters are delightfully human and the score is straight musical storytelling.

Concluding the 1976-77 Artist Series will be a concert by pianist Robert Blocker of North Carolina, a fine artist of the keyboard. His recent musical activities include a tour with the Fort Worth Symphony and a tour for the South Carolina Tricentennial Arts Commission.

Admission to the Artist Series is by season ticket ($8 for adults and $4 for public school pupils) or single admission at $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for public school pupils. University personnel and students will present lyceum/activity cards for admission.

Cindy Mickan is elected Future Teachers' president

For the first time, a chapter of the Future Teachers of America is being established at Georgetown High School.

Two meetings have so far enlisted a membership of 47 students with two staff sponsors, reported Theresa James, club historian. The sponsors, Karen Tatum and Carolyn Sydow, said they had not expected such a good turnout.

Officers elected for the 1976-77 school year include Cindy Mickan, president; Diana Baldwin, vice-president; Mary Lou Rowe, secretary; Lynette Saterfield, treasurer; Stephen Solven, parliamentarian; Theresa James, historian.

FTA will be represented at the homecoming game by Miss Cindy Mickan with Kent Turner as her escort.

Some projects the group has in mind for this school year are tutoring younger students and serving as aides to teachers, sponsoring school improvement activities and attending the state convention. Overall purposes of the Future Teachers of America are to promote the profession of teaching, to serve the community and school and to help all students and teachers in the district.

The Future Teachers of America at Georgetown High School will be sponsored by the local chapter of the Texas State Teachers Association and will be affiliated with both state and national organizations.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sams and Mrs. Christina Biggs spent the weekend visiting in Lubbock in the homes of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Holder spent the weekend in Houston visiting with their daughter. They also attended the Rice-Texas football game.

Back in town for the Georgetown homecoming game and festivities is Joe A. Watson, now of Hobbs, N.M. A former Eagle player, Watson is visiting his sisters in Georgetown, Mrs. Wilkes Thompson and Mrs. Jean Sexton.

Mrs. Sam Winters of Austin was a recent visitor with her niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Harris.

THE JOY OF SHARING

There is pleasure in doing things with others. It may be looking at a picture magazine, or riding toys, or for parents it may even be sharing knowledge of the day's events that bring joy. God's people have a desire to share with you in the greatest joy, that of worshipping together in God's House. ATTEND CHURCH

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Southwestern volunteers campaign to meet challenge

Volunteers kicked off the campaign to meet The Brown Challenge for Southwestern University in two major cities in Texas this week.

About 30 workers met in Houston Monday night and about 20 met in Dallas on September 23 to make final preparations for a person-to-person canvass of alumni and friends to help raise $575,000 to meet the first year quota of The Brown Challenge.

The challenge is a 10-year program offered by The Brown Foundation, Inc., of Houston to give Southwestern University almost $11 million for the fixed endowment if Southwestern's constituency contributes about $8.4 million for operational funds.

Southwestern has been organizing for the 10-year campaign since the challenge was announced late last spring. "and now we are prepared to take the Southwestern story to our alumni, patrons and other friends," says University President Durwood Fleming.

Dr. Fleming emphasized the importance of such volunteer workers as those in Houston and Dallas in meeting The Brown Challenge. Wayne Hightower of Houston, chairman of the major gifts section of the challenge:

John Robinson of Houston, chairman of the special gifts section; Mrs. Mary Owen Greenwood of Houston, chairman of the President's Council; Vernon Sheffield of Houston, chairman of the corporate solicitation committee; and Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon Olson of Waco, chairmen of the Parents Council.

RED CROSS Representative Sue Marshall places another call for West Williamson County, trying to locate a service man or her family, or perhaps helping a family stranded in Georgetown. Besides helping with disaster programs, helping veterans learn about their benefits and serving as an emergency communication system for the armed services, the Red Cross serves Georgetown in various ways. A home nursing course is offered in the high school. Other courses which groups of eight can ask to have taught in Georgetown include hygiene practices, prenatal care, water safety, first aid and small craft and boating safety. Helping support the local service, the Georgetown Area United Way has budgeted $1,100 for the program. As the United Way fund drive enters its third week, watch for Therd, the United Way thermometer, and other volunteers helping fund the Red Cross and other agencies — the United Way.

National 4-H Week

NEARLY 5.6 MILLION young people will observe National 4-H Week October 3-9 with activities centering on the 1976 theme, "4-H — Room to Grow."

The 4-H program is highly flexible and is continually expanding and adapting to the changing needs and interests of young people.

Williamson County has 12 4-H Clubs across the county with about 550 active 4-H members.

4-H is made possible only with the efforts of 4-H adult volunteer leaders. Williamson County has 134 adult leaders who work with the youth on various projects.

Four-H is for all youth 9-19 and offers a wide range of projects from animals to foods to bicycles. 4-H work is conducted in 3,150 counties in the 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Guam.

Four-H continues to serve a large rural audience, but in recent years it has provided "learning by doing" experiences to a growing number of urban youth.

THE SADDLE AND SIRLOIN CLUB of Texas A&M University will sponsor the Texas A&M Fourth Annual Charity Horse Show on Saturday, November 6, at 8:30 a.m. in the Aggie Arena, Texas A&M University, College Station.

NEW CARS

GM scales down new models;
Ford, Chrysler still full size

By Charles E. Dole

Automotive editor of The Christian Science Monitor

Detroit

The big-car "battle of the giants" is about to erupt, a final gasp before all carmakers are forced by governmental edict to improve the mileage efficiency of their engines, which means slimming down car size and weight.

The five car divisions of General Motors are taking the lead at squeezing off the fat. The full-size GM car in 1977 is up to half a ton lighter than a comparable '76 model and around 10 inches shorter in overall length — a massive switch for the big-car kingdom.

With few exceptions, GM's full-size line will be about the size of its 1976-model mid-size cars.

Ford Motor Company and Chrysler, by contrast, are sticking with their full-size offerings for another year at least. Both are planning a hard-hitting drive to capture a bigger chunk of the full-size market — motorists who still want to sit behind the wheel of a 2- to 2½-ton automobile. And there are a lot of them.

"There is every indication that demand for full-size cars will continue to be strong," says Richard D. McLaughlin, head of automotive sales for the Chrysler-Plymouth division.

Yet despite the American fondness for big cars, the irrevocable trend is toward smaller, more efficient models. By 1980, all carmakers will have rescaled and resized almost everything they build.

Across-the-board average

Federal government mandates already call for an across-the-board average of 18 miles to a gallon in 1978; 19 m.p.g. in 1979; and 20 m.p.g. in 1980. By 1985, if the current law remains on the books, the auto industry will have to meet a 27.5 m.p.g. average for all cars sold in the United States.

The only way to achieve these goals is to reduce the size and weight of the cars and improve the efficiency of the engineering. Chrysler cars, which averaged 16.4 m.p.g. in 1976, are expected to average 16.5 m.p.g. next year.

GM chairman Thomas A. Murphy predicts that small cars, those weighing 3,500 pounds or less, could account for more than 70 percent of GM's total sales by the turn of the decade. Today, the figure is around 20 percent.

Despite the slimmed-down image, the GM lineup for 1977 earns high marks for design. The scaled-down full-size cars borrow heavily from the Cadillac Seville, the mini-Cadillac introduced more than a year ago by GM's prestige-car division.

The Seville, in turn, already had copied from the Rolls-Royce, and, although William L. Mitchell, GM's styling vice-president, objects to the suggestion, from the Mercedes as well.

Interiors upgraded

To compensate for the smaller scale of its standard-size cars, GM is upgrading the interiors with a more plush treatment. It is dropping the hardtop from its full-size lineup, moving instead to a pillarless design.

The biggest '77 engine in the GM lineup is Cadillac's 425-cubic-inch V-8, cut back from the 500 of 1976. Pontiac introduces two new engines, one a 151-cubic-inch, cast-iron "4."

An Oldsmobile 350-cubic-inch V-8 diesel is targeted for the 1979 model year, unless emission standards force a change in plans.

GM is introducing a standard-feature electronic spark-timing system on its new front-wheel-drive Olds Toronado, a system which continually adjusts timing in response to information fed to it from the crankshaft, a vacuum sensor, and a coolant-temperature sensor.

Ford Motor Company is dropping its Torino, Elite, and Montego nameplates and is calling its mid-size Ford cars LTD IIs. All Mercury intermediates are called Cougar.

The Ford Pinto gets a new sloping front end of resilient plastic. Higher mileage is expected because of lighter-weight aluminum bumper bars and changes in the drive train. An all-glass hatch also is featured on the Pinto and on the Mercury Bobcat as well.

All carmakers expect better sales performance in 1977.

The new intermediate-sized Thunderbird replaces the Ford Elite. It has new sheet metal and shares tooling and dimensions with the mid-size Fords. With hideaway headlights and a lower price tag, the new T-bird is aimed to compete with the Chevrolet Monte Carlo and Pontiac Grand Prix. All Ford intermediates have dual rectangular head lamps and new sheet metal.

The Mark V, successor to the Mark IV, has a squared-off look reminiscent of the Mercedes. Continental uses the Mark IV grille.

Ford will introduce its snappy, front-wheel-drive Fiesta in the United States next spring, probably in April. The car already is being produced in Europe. Ford also will launch a 4-door small Lincoln next spring as its entry against the luxury-intermediate Cadillac Seville. Based on the Granada/Monarch, it will have its own front and rear ends and include a new hood and deck lid. A fuel-injected 351-cubic-inch engine is rumored for the car. The Seville uses a fuel-injected, 350-cubic-inch engine. A two-door Lincoln is expected in 1978.

Chrysler Corporation, back in the running after a long bout with red ink, is basking in the success of its high-selling Cordoba and the Volare/Aspen duo by Plymouth and Dodge. Options are expanded, while the Cordoba undergoes a few styling revisions.

The intermediate Fury is restyled front and rear, while the full-size Gran Fury revises the model lineup.

Dart, Valiant scrapped

The Dodge Dart and Plymouth Valiant, longtime favorites with a lot of Chrysler-product buyers, are scrapped for '77. The intermediate Dodge is renamed Monaco, dropping the Coronet nameplate.

A new 225-cubic-inch "6" engine is standard in all Chrysler intermediates; it is said to be almost as peppy as Chrysler's 318-cubic-inch V-8. The old single-barrel 225-cubic-inch continues as base engine for Volare and Aspen, while the new 225 is an option.

American Motors unveils its new Pacer station wagon in an effort to pry the Pacer sedan out of its sales rut. An instant success when introduced a year ago, the Pacer slumped when U.S. car tastes shifted from small back to big.

Gremlin, meanwhile, is restyled from the "A" pillar forward, including a sloping front end and egg-crate grille. AMC will put the Audi 4-cylinder engine in the Gremlin in January — thus giving the car a more peppy image.

A new figure appears on 1977 car labels. In addition to city and highway miles-per-gallon data, the Environmental Protection Agency also tells owners the yearly fuel cost based on m.p.g. figures. The estimate is based on 15,000 miles a year and a 65-cents-a-gallon price, estimated by the Federal Energy Administration.

Tightening of enforcement

Further, the EPA is tightening its enforcement of automotive-emission standards. The agency is spot-checking all new-model cars and light-duty trucks coming off assembly lines. Previous tests were on production prototypes only.

Many 1977 cars are expected to get better mileage when compared with the '76s. GM, for example, asserts its 44 new models of "full-size" and luxury cars will average almost 3 more miles per gallon. "That's a 10 percent improvement over our 1976 federal fuel economy and more than a 50 percent increase over the base year 1974," declares GM president E. M. Estes.

Meanwhile, the U.S. auto industry is racking up some impressive sales figures after two disastrous years.

U.S. carmakers built some 8.3 million units in the 1976 model year, a 30 percent increase over 1975. In 1973, the industry turned out 9.9 million cars, an all-time record.

GM took 56.86 percent of the total U.S. market, up 1.07 percentage points. Ford was down 1.51 percentage points to 26.08 percent. And AMC, at 3.5 percent, fell .56 of a percentage point. Chrysler managed to keep its share of the market at 13.56 percent, the same as 1975.

All carmakers expect better sales performance in 1977.

Liberty Hill NEWS

BY HOWARD N. WILSON

Today is the regular Liberty Hill Market Day for October, and we are expecting the usual large group of friends to be in town for the big event. This is, as we have said before, an excellent opportunity for you to meet and greet your old friends and to make some new ones while in the friendly atmosphere that always prevails in our town — particularly on special events like Market Day.

We want to emphasize there is always something for everyone to do, to buy, or just to enjoy looking and visiting! We hope to see you there!

On Market Day another special event for our community will be the open house that is being held for our Liberty Hill Public Library from 1 until 5 p.m. Saturday. Be sure to visit our Liberty Hill Public Library, which as many of you know, is located in the loft above "The Sweet Shoppe."

The Liberty Hill School Panther band will be giving away a Charolais heifer calf on Liberty Hill Square Sunday afternoon.

Bill was a member of our community just a few years, but he was very active in the community and had many friends — he will surely be missed!

Don't forget to go to the school house tonight for the VFW Game Session, and enjoy the fellowship — there is FUN for everyone!

We want to publicly acknowledge a letter from a very nice lady, Mrs. Sam Harris of Georgetown. Mrs. Harris told us that she and our next-door neighbor, Marshal Richardson, started to school together in Georgetown. It is letters like this and personal communiques from our "Sun Readers" which make this all really worthwhile. Thank you, Mrs. Harris!

A lady whose brother-in-law passed away of lung cancer after two packs of cigarettes for thirty years lamented his passing and said, "All you wives who are nagging your husband, and all you husbands who are pleading with your wives to throw away those filthy killers — and all you young people who are turning your healthy pink young lungs into tar pits at 65 cents a pack, for God's sake, for the sake of those who love you, STOP!"

Three of the Varsity Panthers, Eric Weems, Curtis Floyd and Todd Linebaugh, have been out of action this week due to injuries. As a result of this, David Brown, Walter Rutherford and Gary Dodd have been moved up from the Junior Varsity to take their place — we hope these fellows will be back at full speed soon!

Our Panthers lost to the Hutto Hippies last Friday night by 34-0.

Everyone is just waiting for the report cards to come out from the printers so the teachers can put the grades on them; they should be here sometime this week.

The Liberty Hill Student Council had a meeting last Wednesday afternoon, and it was decided they would sponsor "The Spook House" at the Halloween Carnival. The Council members are making plans for a Christmas dance. Their next project will be writing a constitution.

There will be a volleyball game here Monday starting at 4:30 p.m. with the junior high, junior varsity and varsity, all three playing.

The next football game will be Friday night at Rodgers at 7:30 p.m. The students hope to see you there!

★ National 4-H Week

in towns, too. Whatever kind of a project you're interested in, we can find for you."

WITH TWO NEW CLUBS in Hutto and Cedar Park bringing the total of 12 chapters county-wide, 120 more members than last year (550), and 19 new adult leaders (a total of 134 across the county), Wilkie and Bonner feel they can demonstrate that 4-H is on the grow in this area and providing its individual members "Room to Grow." Bonner attributes the increases to a successful combination of fun, work, and education.

"4-H IS fun," she says, "but it also provides a chance to learn more about what you're personally interested in, as well as development of leadership abilities."

Some of the most popular annual events for Williamson County 4-H members include food and livestock shows, a Dress Revue, demonstration contests, rifle contests, a Christmas Party, vegetable show, leadership lab, ecology conference, and the State 4-H Congress. But the biggest events are the annual Awards Banquet (to be held at 7:30 p.m. in Taylor on Tuesday), the Exchange Program, and 4-H Camp.

"Through exchange (in which Williamson County 4-H members live for a week in the homes of members from other states), we learn how to travel, we learn about differences in lifestyles, and we learn what 4-H life is like elsewhere," said Bonner. The kids are lucky to be able to participate in an exchange program. The annual 4-H Camp at Trinidad is also a highlight."

COMPETITIVE EVENTS where members match their projects promote not only competition, but friendship, she added.

The driving force of the organization, says Bonner, is the core of adult leaders. They help make 4-H meaningful; they provide the meat of it. Nationwide, statistics show that adult leaders give an average of 20 days a year to the organization. The only requirement to become a 4-H leader is to be interested in the kids and to be willing to give some time. Obviously, two people can't operate the entire program. We provide an opportunity for the kids to learn, and they want to learn, but they have to help."

Production of special 4-H events costs about $1,000 each year. The United Way drive chips in $200, with the rest coming from Livestock Show and Sale ads and gate and concession receipts as well as donations from area civic and service organizations. "Money is not really a problem, since the major expense is for individual projects, and each member finances his or her own," said Bonner. "We usually find a source. People across the county have been good friends to 4-H."

THE 12 COUNTY CLUBS are organized under a County Council. This year's Council includes President Gayle Brister of Taylor, Vice-President Ernie Rohlack of Coupland, Secretary Elaine Lang of Thrall, and Treasurer Michael Lidell of Jonah.

Presidents of the various community clubs are Ernie Rohlack at Coupland; Jan Hajda at Granger; Heidi Werchan at Hutto; Julie Nickels at Leander; Vickie Leschner at Georgetown; Roxanne Pople at Schwertner; Kevin Standifer at Jonah; Brett Harbers at Taylor; Elaine Lang at Thrall; and John Badough at Round Rock. Cedar Park and Liberty Hill clubs are still organizing, though Liberty Hill already has organized participation in horse events.

Nationwide, over 5 1/2 million youngsters have pledged "my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service and my health to better living" through 4-H. Of those, 56.1 percent are girls, 43.10 percent boys, 23.2 percent live on farms, 40.1 percent in towns under 10,000 population or in open country; 16.8 percent in towns and cities of 10,000 population; 8.2 percent in suburbs of cities of over 50,000; and 11.7 percent in central cities of over 50,000.

Requirements for becoming a 4-H member are simply that a youngster be 9-19 years of age. "4-H is for everyone, and we welcome everyone regardless of race, creed, religion, or sex," said Bonner.

REGULAR MEETINGS are held by these 4-H clubs: Coupland, third Tuesday, Coupland School; Granger, third Tuesday, K. C. Hall; Hutto, third Monday, Hutto High School.

Leander, third Monday, Elementary Cafeteria; Georgetown third Monday, V.F.W. Hall; Schwertner, second Tuesday, Community Center.

Jonah, second Tuesday, Community Center; Taylor, third Monday, St. Paul Lutheran Church; Thrall, third Monday, School Cafeteria and Round Rock, third Monday, Middle School.

"We just had a general discussion and everything went very well."

"WE ARE PLANNING" on continuing hoping we can build a barn. Ag teachers read their proposal that they all show animals that had been bought in Williamson County and of course said they would like one livestock show.

dispatchers — could cost $2,500. He said a blanket policy covering all county officeholders and their clerks (including coverage of the sheriff's department for its clerical work, as opposed to law enforcement work) could add another $3,000 to the insurance bill. He listed a $1,500 to $2,500 cost range for professional liability for the ambulance division.

"That's just a rough estimate," he cautioned, "but if you total all those you're talking about $9,000."

Kurio figured that the two-month raise for the county's 140-145 employees would generate almost $10,000 for an employee's insurance fund.

"That would actually more than take care of the insurance," said Commissioner Wesley Foust. "It would take care of the insurance plus withholdings, Social Security and retirement deductions for those two months. If we get it for that we'll be real fortunate, I think."

GOVERNMENT would extend from the county as a governmental entity to actions of all its workers. Probably a $1,000 deductible policy, the insurance would have a $1 million limit per loss as well as a $1 million maximum annual aggregate, Blumentritt told the court.

"They are not going to pay out more than $1 million in any year, if it's one official of six or whatever," he translated.

While the district judge and district attorney's salaries are not paid by the county, all county employees — including those in the district clerk, constable and peace justices' offices — will receive the additional $50 in their paychecks covering November salaries. Although the annual insurance payment would require most of the two-month pay hike, the $50 added to employees salaries after December 31 would not be needed for insurance coverage.

Working under Richter's leadership on the building committee are Gower, Jerry Cassens of Jarrell and Alfred Lairdon of Hutto.

"There were no Taylor or Granger representatives there, but I think the rest of the county was represented," reported Carl Lidell of Georgetown, who served as temporary president for the organization until the Thursday elections.

Lidell also said that Florence, Georgetown and Taylor agriculture instructors told the Association they were going to support the Georgetown show, "except Emerson Brister (of Taylor High School), who said he would support Taylor and Georgetown."

The October 21 meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the county courtroom on the second floor of the courthouse.

new housing development going in out west of Round Rock."

Four banks — Bank of the Hills in Cedar Park, First National in Schwertner, First Bank and Trust in Bartlett and First State in Jarrell — recorded decreases from last year's deposit figures.

SUMMING UP the agriculture situation for part of Williamson County, Oscar Schwertner, president of Schwertner First National, said, "Maize isn't selling. Farmers are holding off for better prices with a December or January delivery date. The cotton crop was a flop: little is being harvested, most of it was plowed under. It was a complete failure, due to the boll weevil. You've heard the boll weevil song, repeat it and that's us."

Recording an increase of 1,693,361 at City National in Taylor, bank President Ed C. Griffith

"They also said they would prefer having a livestock show, not an auction barn for the simple reason that they have diseases. No one will take breeding animals, especially, to them. The breeding end of the show had gone down to practically nothing and Taylor just doesn't have any breeding animals."

Lidell also said that Florence, Georgetown and Taylor agriculture instructors told the Association they were going to support the Georgetown show, "except Emerson Brister (of Taylor High School), who said he would support Taylor and Georgetown."

The October 21 meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the county courtroom on the second floor of the courthouse.

4-H Awards Banquet set Tuesday

4H'ers from around Williamson County will be recognized for their club activities Tuesday night at the annual 4-H Awards Banquet.

Slated to begin at 7 p.m., the banquet will be held at Rudy Mikeska's Barbecue in Taylor.

"In order to attend the Awards Banquet," said Asst. Extension Agent Edward Wilke, "a 4-H member must have turned in a project record book to the Extension Office."

Those members who qualify will attend free.

All adults will be charged a dollar.

Gold Star awards will be presented during the banquet to the 4-H boy and girl noted for most active participation in the organization.

Award pins will also be distributed to all those who completed projects. The pins, said Wilke, will be small circles with a symbol representing the specific projects for which they are awarded.

Adult leaders will receive appreciation certificates and year pins.
